How are librarians promoting, adjusting to, etc to online reference sources?

My presentation focuses on how we are looking at online vs. print reference sources. As more and more students want materials online and as more publishers convert to online or make online available we must make these adjustments. How are you dealing with these switches to online sources rather than having traditional print resources? Which print resources are libraries retaining? How do you encourage librarians and faculty to use online reference resources (ebooks, databases, etc)?
