DEDICATED TO THE TECH MEN IN SERVICE
Dedication

When the red sun sinks behind the broken hills bathing in sad light the wrecks of ancient forests and stately old-world villages, and the quiet hour of twilight gives the battle pause between mad onslaughts,
the boys in the trenches Over There—OUR BOYS
—will think of home.

After taps has sounded there'll be hours of dreaming of the quiet countryside in the good old U. S. A.,
of the sweethearts and comrades left behind, of the school days so sharply ended by the stern call to arms.

Perhaps they will often wonder if they are remembered at home, if those who stay behind really appreciate what they are doing, what they are giving up in their proud fight for Democracy.

To these boys we owe all, and that the spirit of appreciation might be shown, we dedicate this, the 1918
Blue Print, to the Tech boys in Service.

1918
It has been our aim in producing this Annual to collect within its pages all that is best and most enduring in our college life. The friendships and associations, the gaieties and pleasures, the hours of work and the strife of intercollegiate contests—these are the things we shall most often recall in after years. We hope that this book may serve to keep more bright the memories of college days.

We have worked earnestly with this purpose in view and if we have succeeded, our work has not been in vain, but if we have failed our only reward lies in the knowledge that we have done our best.
