At the opening of school last fall the Y. M. C. A. workers started out on the new schedule set for the big Promotion Committee. The Promotion idea gave promise of a most effective year, and for several weeks the seventy-five men lined up with the new system, did a noble work. Being unable to foresee just what it meant, however, to be tied up with many phases of army work, and to be for the first time without an assistant secretary, we underestimated the amount of time necessary to plan the work of the big committee. Soon the duties of the staff became so complicated the board deemed it advisable to abandon the Promotion plan and revert to the former method of individual committee work.

The type of work characterising the present year has been the daily, material service rendered the men of both the Aviation School and the Regular Tech. In addition, the outstanding effort of the Association has been to assist Dr. Matheson and the heads of departments in correcting rumors and to weather the storms of unrest among the Tech students. Each day has been stamped with confusion and uncertainty to the extent no definite organization could be kept going, yet the work has been most intense, and a real contribution to the building of our army.

So that with a crippled force, and with increased duties and responsibilities, the Y. M. C. A. in this year has "done her bit to help with the war." More than two thousand different men have been served since last July, a record that doubles any previous year.

Memories

WAR! The magic word, that for ages has run through the world driving humanity ruthlessly before it, with horror in its wake, came to America just as Tech was finishing the year of '17. Strange how one small word so changes the lives and actions of men.

Swept into the cauldron of warring nations the Government called to every man to do his duty, and the men of '17 responded to the call at once. Commencement week found over half of the class in the service of the Government, in the war camps, bending every effort to prepare themselves to lead the men of America "over there." Those left behind were patiently waiting to be called and had little thought of the gayeties that usually mark the last days with the Alma Mater. Another actor was upon the stage.

So it was that the festivities of Tech's Commencement Week, the great Pan-Hellenic Dance, the Senior Hop and the Carnival, those joyous affairs that passing years had almost made institutions in the school, were forgotten. Not exactly forgotten, just thought of in the day's rush, and then set aside for a vital work, the work of War!

* * * * *

The great hall of the Druid Hills Golf Club was dark and silent, but across its polished floors there danced, in the shadows of thought, the happy couples that in other years had enjoyed the Commencement Pan-Hellenic Dance. The spectre throng of masked men in freakish and gaudy make-ups flitted here and there with fair ladies in dainty and pretty costumes, to the tunes of silent music, in a scene of silent merry making.
The East Lake Club, where the Seniors, at former Commencements, were wont to be host to all, and where you danced until you could dance no more, did not re-sound with laughter for the men of '17. In the quiet of night the same mellow moon shone upon the lake, and the same soft breeze whispered by, but no boy and girl walked beside the shimmering water, for War had taken the boy.

Queen Electra III did not reign, her throne and power had been usurped by a ruler hard and cruel who knows no joy, the ruler Mars. Grant Field where her predecessors had been royally crowned in a Carnival of revelry and splendor, was barren except for the marks of many marching feet. The shouts of the Bally-Hoo men of Tech relating the wonders to be seen within their curious tents had given way to the sharp commands of the student officers.

* * * * *

Of course it was with regret that these celebrations over four years labor were given up, but the graduating class of the Georgia School of Technology of 1917 was a class of men, of true patriots. They left all the pleasure of the Commencement behind to serve a cause, which by its success will give to all men the peace and security of the Democracy of the whole world. A sacrifice it is true, but a little one repaid a hundredfold by the honor of serving the Red, White and Blue.

And when in future years, history shall have written the deeds of honor and duty of the Americans in the war, upon her indestructible pages, we will expect to find the names of the Tech men of the class of '17.
In the past it had been the custom to hold the Junior Prom on the night of, and in conjunction with, the Commencement Carnival. But with our country at war, the Faculty saw best to call off the Carnival; and, for the same reason, the Senior Hop and Pan-Hellenic Dance were omitted; especially since the majority of the Senior Class were in the training camps and could not attend.

But the Juniors, along with the Sophomores, were determined that all things of pleasure should not be sacrificed because of the war.

And so, the Junior Prom was held with greater grandeur, splendor, and style than ever before.

About ten o'clock on the evening of Friday, June 8th, a multitude of gay couples began arriving by way of autos at the Druid Hills Golf Club with but one purpose in view, and that was to have the time of their young lives; and in so doing, to make the Junior Prom a great success.

And this they did.

Though there were present a number of uniforms, everyone seemed to forget the war; and, swayed by the rhythmical strains of melody drifting in from the orchestra, the happy couples glided over the ball room floors and over the terrace; forgetful of all else but their companions and the joy of living.

The night was cool and beautiful;—moonlight with just a few fleecy clouds to throw flitting shadows over the landscape. And so, when tired for the time being of dancing, couples would wander out into the night and stroll over the golf links.

The decorations were tasteful and beautiful, the floor excellent, the music better, and everyone was having the best time possible. With the coming of dawn the tunes grew livelier, the dance faster, and there was more pep in the crowd.

Everybody was having the time of their young lives. There has been dances in the past but somehow they couldn't rival this one. Maybe it was the thought that this may be the last dance that Tech would have or perhaps the debutante soldier boy felt the same feeling. I'm going to France and it will be a long time, he thought, before we dance together again, and she was thinking the same. A good many of the boys who were there that night are now in France, and others are preparing to go, and some are still in school during their bit "over here." But the girls, they are doing their bit also.

"Because of the war," dinner and breakfast were combined into one meal, and about one o'clock the hungry crowd was feasted on "hot dogs," rolls and scrambled eggs.

Did you ever see a hungry mob eat at an all-night dance? It is a hungry sight. They don't Hooverize. When the gong is sounded the mob rushes for the eats, and food disappears.

That is the only trouble with a Tech dance. It has to end. I believe the dancers could dance forever. Sometimes I wonder how pleasant it would be for night to last forever, and the Juniors give a dance. Wouldn't it be great? We would have our queens, our sponsors, and our soldiers all dancing and the cares of the world forgotten for the time only. But when the night would end and Old Sol blew his trumpet the dancers all alike would forget their pleasures and think of the burden resting upon their shoulders.

The credit for staging this dance goes to the Koseme Society. Never before in the history of the school has a dance been run off more smoothly and to the entire satisfaction of all. Many favorable comments were heard on all sides, on the good time and many dates were made for a year hence.

Later came favors, streamers, confetti, and noise makers to add to the fun.

Dancing lasted long after Old Sol had come to announce the new day; and not until well after six o'clock did the merry throng begin to break up and seek the city and home.
THE Sophomores were just as determined as the Juniors that the war should not interfere with their dance. But what were they to do for a name? In the past it had always been "Sophomore-German" but "German," did you say?—this would never do!

Like the true sports that they were, the undaunted Sophomores announced that the "Sophomore-AMERICAN" would be held with all due form and accompanying good times at Segadlos' on Saturday afternoon, June the 9th, from 4:00 to 7:00 o'clock.

Accordingly, at said time and place the Tech girls and boys assembled from every quarter;—in fact, they kept on assembling and congregating (you just couldn't keep 'em away) until old Segadlos' was packed full and running over.

Also the day was a warm one. But that only seemed to help every one get up a little more steam, put a bit more pep into the dance, and have just a royal good time of it.

The Sophomores showed themselves to be excellent hosts; the ladies were as beautiful and charming as ever; the music fine; the hall tastily decorated; the floor in good condition; and so everyone just had to have a big time.

All seemed to realize that this was the last as well as the second of the Commencement dances and all wished to dance on and on, long after the strains of "Home, Sweet Home" had been wafted through the hall many times.

But everything must have an end, so reluctantly the gay throng finally disbanded; and, proclaimed by all to have been a rare Tech dance, the first Sophomore-American came to an end.
