TO

JOHN BASCOMB CRENSHAW
DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

faithful friend and patient consul of every true Tech man, whose ever-increasing interest in the athletics of our campus, has been instrumental in placing them in the high position they now hold, whose earnest and conscientious efforts have succeeded in adding a new animation and spirit to our student body, whose incessant and efficient services have proved themselves of incomparable value to our Alma Mater, this,
the thirteenth volume of the BLUE
PRINT, is respectfully dedicated.
—BY THE EDITORS
Dr. J. B. Crenshaw, A. M., Ph. D.
Professor of Modern Languages
THE development of a college annual is quite a different phase from the usual run of college activities. Upon the two staffs of this, The Blue Print, has devolved the task of assimilating and recording all the more important events that go to make up the college life of the year, as it has been lived on the campus here at Georgia Tech. To have made notes of all of the interesting things that have passed across our stage of activities would have thrown us into a sea of confusion, where the wealth of material would have only engulfed us. However, it has been our endeavor to jot down those happenings that mean the most to the greatest number of us, in as pleasing a manner as we were able.

The return of the college to its pre-war status has added to and made more complex many of our tasks. For any mistake that may have occurred, we beg a sympathetic forbearance; yet we have put our hearts into the effort and have worked together, hoping that when this volume is scanned in the coming years, it can but vividly suggest sweet memories of a year happily and profitably spent. If a goodly measure of success crowns our efforts, we shall be very happy.
Academic Building

This building together with the first shops are the only original buildings left on the campus. This academic building was completed during the summer of 1888. Its erection was made possible through donations received from the Legislature of Georgia and the liberality of Atlanta and some of her loyal citizens.
Carnegie Library

On March the twelfth, nineteen hundred and six, Mr. Andrew Carnegie donated $20,000 for a library building. This donation was made under the condition that the school appropriate $2,000 annually for its upkeep and support. The Board of Trustees accepted the condition and the building was erected.
Electrical Building

In December, nineteen hundred, the Legislature of Georgia appropriated $10,000 toward the erection of an Electrical Engineering Building. Through the kindness of some of the loyal citizens of Atlanta and the help of the school an additional sum of $25,000 was obtained. The building was completed and occupied at a very early date.
Mechanical Building

In August, nineteen hundred and ten, the Legislature of Georgia appropriated $35,000 for the erection of a new shop building. By the assistance of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce an additional amount of $22,000 was raised and this together with the appropriation of the Legislature was secured in February, 1911. The erection of the building now known as the Mechanical Engineering Building was begun. Ultimately the building will consist of five units, three of which are now completed and occupied.
Chemical Building

In June, nineteen hundred and four, the Legislature of Georgia appropriated, for the erection of a Chemical Building, $10,000. Through donations by friends of the school another $10,000 was raised. By the middle of the year of nineteen and six, the building was completed and furnished. This building is known as the Lyman Hall Laboratory of Chemistry in honor of Captain Hall, one of our deceased presidents.
In the summer of nineteen hundred and fourteen, a Greater Tech Fund Campaign was begun. As a result of the campaign sufficient funds were raised for the erection of a Power Plant. Certain manufacturers were induced to donate $100,000 worth of power machinery conditioned on the erection of a suitable building. The building is now completed and a part of the machinery installed. In the back ground can be seen a view of the Textile Engineering Building made possible by the aid of Mr. A. French of Pittsburgh, also the Joseph Brown Whitehead Hospital erected in memorial of the donor's husband.
Janie Austell Swann Dormitory

In March, nineteen hundred, Mr. Swann made a donation of $21,000 for the erection of a dormitory. This building was completed at an early date. It is known as the Janie Austell Swann Dormitory, in honor of the donor's wife.
History of the Georgia School of Technology

On November 24, 1882, the Hon. N. E. Harris prepared and introduced in the Georgia Legislature a resolution authorizing the creation of a committee to investigate the advisability of establishing a technical school in Georgia. The bill was overwhelmingly defeated; but finally in 1885, fathered by Governor Harris, a bill was passed making an appropriation for the founding of a technical school.

The Act establishing a technical school in Georgia provided for competitive bids from various sections of the state for the location of the school. The cities of Athens, Atlanta, Macon, Milledgeville, and Penfield submitted such bids. That of Atlanta was accepted, this action being based upon superior inducements offered by Atlanta. A campus of nearly five acres was purchased on North Avenue and during the summer of 1888 the buildings and part of the equipment being ready, a faculty and president were elected; and on October 7, the institution was turned over by the Commission, to the Trustees of the State University. The Georgia School of Technology was formally opened.

Dr. Isaac S. Hopkins had been called to serve as first president of the new institution, and occupied this position until 1896.
During the spring of 1896, Dr. Lyman Hall, a graduate of West Point and then Professor of Mathematics at Tech, was elected to succeed Dr. Hopkins, first as chairman of the faculty; and in June, as president of the school. The presidency of Dr. Hall extended from this date until his death, August 16, 1905.

In December, 1896, the Legislature appropriated a sum for the equipment of a Department of Electrical Science, and for building a dormitory. The Knowles dormitory was erected, and was first occupied at the opening of the session of 1897. The local Board of Trustees, at its meeting in 1896, established the degrees of Electrical Engineering and Civil Engineering. In December, 1897, the Legislature appropriated a further amount for the establishment of a Textile Department. The creation of the Departments of Electrical, Civil, and Textile Engineering was the beginning of an era of rapid and steady expansion—in buildings and equipment, in size of faculty and student body, in curriculum and standard of work, and in prestige.

In 1903, the will of Mr. Jas. Swann provided that Tech should receive $10,000 in cash upon the settlement of his estate. This amount, properly supplemented, was spent in the purchase of land adjoining the campus, and in the erection on a portion there of a president’s residence. Mr. Swann had previously in 1900, given the school the Janie Swann Dormitory, as a memorial to his wife. The next considerable addition to Tech was the Lyman Hall Laboratory of Chemistry, in June, 1904.

As successor to Dr. Hall, the Board of Trustees elected Dr. K. G. Matheson, Professor of English at Tech, to the chairmanship of the faculty and installed him as president the following year, 1906. The period since this date has been characterized by a continuous growth. Not merely has the school experienced an enlargement in its material equipment and its patronage, but its name has yearly become more widely and more favorably known, and the institution’s resources have been applied continually toward a more extensive satisfying of the needs of the state and the community.

The Class of 1903 was the first to erect a memorial to itself on the campus. The beautiful marble drinking fountain was erected in March, 1911, and was formally presented to the school at the following commencement. On the same occasion, the Electrical Seniors of the Class of 1911 presented the school with the electric light standards, placed in front of the entrance of the Electrical Building. The Electrical Seniors of 1912 continued the tradition by erecting the light standards in front of the Library. The Classes of 1914 and 1915 erected the standards and concrete steps in front of the Academic Building.

In April, 1913, Mr. J. W. Grant gave Tech the equipment for an athletic field, and the Board of Trustees, in appreciation of the gift, named the field “The Hugh Inman Grant Field,” in memory of Mr. Grant’s deceased son. This dual athletic field is unequalled in the South. In 1915, through further liberality of Mr. Grant and the Board of Trustees, the concrete grand stand was completed, making it the largest and most modern of its kind in this section of the country.

On March 12, 1906, Mr. Andrew Carnegie offered a sum for the erection of a library building. The Trustees accepted the offer and the building was erected and with its present collection of volumes, it constitutes the most complete college library in the South. In November, 1909, the Joseph Brown Whitehead Memorial Hospital was erected by Mrs. Whitehead, in memory of her husband.

Through the generosity of Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Tech possesses the present branch Y. M. C. A. Mr. Rockefeller, in February, 1910, gave a sum for the erection of the building, provided Tech should raise a sum equal to half the original sum. This pro rata was secured, and the erection of the building was begun in May, 1911; and was completed in the summer of the following year, 1912.

In 1914 the great conflagration of the world war engulfed the whole world and Tech men were determined to be first in war as well as first in peace. Not waiting for the United States to enter the war, members of both the faculty and the student body of Tech offered their services to the different nations who later became our allies. The record made by Tech men in the war is one to be envied by any institution.

Georgia Tech was one of the pioneer institutions in submitting its application for units of the Reserve Officers’ Training Corps. In the spring of 1917 the War Department authorized the establishment of the Tech units of the R. O. T. C. Because of the high standing made by the school in war work, Tech was designated by the War Department in the fall of 1918, as one of the institutions to maintain a post of the Student Officers’ Training Corps. Not only did Tech maintain an army branch of the S. A. T. C., but she was one of thirty-two colleges to be given a navy branch, and one of twelve to receive a marine branch of the S. A. T. C.

Now that the war is over, and college men of the country have settled down to civilian life and college life once more, the Georgia School of Technology has passed through the year of 1919-1920 with the largest enrollment in the history of the institution—a greater TECH.

Faculty Poem

AS WE SEE THEM WHEN IN COLLEGE

Guardians of the things of torture,
Calculus, script and worse than these,
How you love to see us suffer
By withholding our degrees.

How you watch to catch us sleeping,
Heedless of the tasks at hand.
How you figure to defeat us.
How you glory when we're "canned."

AS THEY APPEAR IN AFTER LIFE

How they struggle to inform me
Of the mysteries of math.
How heedless was I of their troubles
Tried to fan and raise their wrath.

Oh that I had been attentive
To their warnings and advice.
Troubles would have been averted
In the trials of after life.

MORAL

Do not jump to a conclusion
'Til both sides are clear to you.
What seems red may change to purple
When you change your point of view.
On the twentieth day of September, nineteen hundred and sixteen, there might have been seen wandering aimlessly around the stately campus of Georgia Tech some three hundred wild and strange looking specimens of young manhood varying in type and manner from one, who had just tossed aside his plough reins, to he who had only recently severed connections with his mother's apron strings, yet exhibiting one glaring and unexceptional characteristic in common, a brilliant, vivid, verdant, degree of greenness that sent a thrill of unholy joy to every Sophomore's heart. As we had expected, we were met at the train by the President and tucked into bed that night by Dr. Wallace, thus starting the checkered career of the Class of Nineteen and Twenty. Four years pass, four years of murderous Math, of Chemistry, Physics and three thousand days of "Lab," and a sadly depleted remnant of this valiant throng will limp painfully up on June the ninth to receive the coveted reward.

The Class of Nineteen Twenty—Following is Its History:

We started the year right by immediately electing officers. Ham Dowling, President; W. S. Fellers, Vice-President; P. A. Lee, Secretary and Treasurer. Under the able leadership of these men, the class soon showed signs of its mettle and within a short time its spirit had reached a pitch that no class has surpassed. Backed up to the last ditch by a huge, golden-capped, yelling Freshman "T," our football team that year swept everything before it and our other teams, with the same un-swering support, had unusual success. Not only by our support did we help our teams. In every activity of the School, athletic, literary, engineering, social-worthy representatives of the Class of Twenty have given their best. We started that by giving three men to football, one to baseball, five to track, one to tennis and many others to the Blue Print, Technique, Marionettes and other activities.

In the beaten path of inter-class athletics, we won the football championship, first place on Field Day, second in basket-ball, and stood well in the cross-country but equal satisfaction was derived by, what we hope, were contributions to Tech tradition. The Class of Twenty was the first at Tech to wear the golden Freshman cap and in celebration of this fact we “pulled off” a parade ending at Washington Seminary, that its participants will never forget. The greatest thing that year, however, was the First Annual Banquet of the Class of Nineteen Twenty and also the first Freshman banquet held at Georgia Tech. Its huge success made certain the three similar annual affairs that have succeeded it. This tradition has been ably followed by the succeeding classes.

This Class of Twenty is one of the war classes of Georgia Tech. We willingly pay the price that trying period during our Sophomore and Junior years has cost us in non-returning classmates, in curtailed school work and activities. It has never been the policy of this School nor its classes to boast of their war records. We consider our service not as unusual, but the only simple thing to think of in our country’s need. Every able-bodied man saw service in some branch. Those returning with bars, service stripes and other decorations are a matter of record. We cheerfully boast of the spirit, however, that sent them back after the big job was done, to finish the work they had begun here. Many of them, leaving early and returning late, will, on that account, not receive their diplomas this year, but that little matter is of small consequence with their fellow Classmates.

Hugh McMath, L. C. Ingram, and J. Wright Brown led us during our Sophomore year, D. B. Sanford, C. H. Schofield and H. C. Arnall during our Junior and on the last lap Ham Dowling was again honored with the Presidency, with W. E. Fincher, Vice-President, E. C. Gartner, Secretary, and S. P. Boughton, Treasurer.

In our Sophomore year five of our classmates won their “T” in football, one in baseball, four in track and one in tennis, while the Junior year found five in football, six in baseball, and one in tennis. We have furnished one football, two baseball, two swimming and one basket-ball captains, three Technique and one Blue Print Editors.

With the Senior Banquet on the night after Commencement ends the College History of the Class of Nineteen Twenty. May its real History be builded on the future work of its members, constructed along the sound Engineering lines, and guided by the highest ideals of our Alma Mater.

Senior Poem

Four years have sped as the lightning—
A flash, and darkness around.
Our college days are over,
But our future remains to be found.

No doubt you have thought of this moment,
When as graduates you would appear,
As something momentous and lasting—
That the end of your troubles were near.

But in fact it is just a mile post,
Just one of the many in life,
To be passed by the man with a future—
A man who is fit for the strife.

Our future now lies before us,
The door to success is ajar.
Our degree is a key to the portal,
But it's to us to make or to mar.

His unusual ability along chemical lines, combined with his belief in spiritualism, caused the doctor to bend all of his efforts toward the invention of an instrument that would look both into the past and future of any one whom the owner had in mind.

Doctor Freible's once nice little fortune had been swept away for some time, his once large troop of servants had dwindled to only three. No one liked the old doctor but those who were very closely associated with him, and I suppose that I was his best friend. I don't suppose that the doctor had any living relatives, at least if he had, I never heard him speak once of them.

Dr. Freible had never married, and neither had I; in fact my last love affair came during my college days. The girl, the only one I thought, had turned me down, and though I recovered easily enough it never was my fortune, or misfortune as the case may be, to fall in love with another. So as I said, Dr. Freible and I came to be bosom friends and companions. He was much my senior, but I always found him very interesting, and his advice very beneficial.

But now the doctor was dead, I had just returned from the interment and was sitting alone, thinking with much sorrow of the sad death of my old friend. Sad indeed was the death, for the worthy doctor had almost completed his famous Retroprospectometer. He had gotten the instrument into the shape where one could look into the past and present of anyone and was working on the future part of the machine when the grim reaper made his call.

The Retroprospectometer was a very delicate arrangement of prisms, mirrors, and containers, holding a mixture of some of the rarest gases known to the human mind. A photograph could be placed on a translucent plate through which the rays of a very powerful light were sent. Upon looking into the eye-piece of the instrument, one could see the past and present of that one whose likeness was upon the plate, pass before him as a motion picture is seen on the screen.

After sitting a while pining over the loss of my friend, I got up and stumbled into the laboratory. There covered with an oil cloth casing sat the instrument that represented the life's work of Dr. Freible.

I walked over to the instrument, removed the cover and tried to turn on the lights, as I had so often seen the worthy doctor do, but to my amazement, I found that there was no current. My first desire was to leave it alone but on second thought, I decided that I was foolish to consider the machine human and refuse to work because of the death of its inventor. The fuse box was in a very dark part of the laboratory, and half afraid I cautiously picked my way to the corner in which the box sat. I must confess that my association with the doctor had made me somewhat of a believer in spiritualism.

Upon getting to the box I found that a fuse had burnt out. I replaced this and retraced my steps to the instrument. In going back I dropped the fuse which I held in my hand. Collar-button-like it rolled under the desk that I used while working in the laboratory. The fuse was blown and I might have let it alone, but, for some reason that I cannot explain, I bent down to recover the fuse. The first thing that my hand touched was a book, about ten inches square. I pulled this out, brushed from it the dust of several months and carried it to the light. To my great surprise and delight it was the Blue Print of 1920.

Oh! What memories this old book brought back to me. Immediately I sank into a cushioned chair and for the time being forgot all about Doctor, Retrospectometer, Switzerland and all.

My mind was somewhere else, somewhere across the Atlantic—in the State of Georgia, at Georgia Tech. Once more I was with my friends at college, in the class room, on the athletic field. Oh! memories! That both bless and burn—burn because of the present, I many, many miles from the scenes of my college days, the friends of my younger years. Oh! what would I give to see my college mates as they are now, so far away from me?

Many minutes I sat and wished and then as if a flash the thought struck me—the Retroprospectometer—why not use it? It was mine. The doctor willed me his all when he passed away.

Braving my fears at delving into the supernatural, with book in hand, I reluctantly walked over toward the machine.

I opened the book and sought eagerly for the senior class. The Class of Twenty! On the first pages were the pictures of the class officers—Ham Dowling, Bill Fincher, Wright Brown and Stay Power Boughton. I placed this page on the plate and saw Ham Dowling, budding politician that he was, now President of a South American Republic, with Henry Kahrs as Prime Minister; Pie, Keeper of the Harem; McCash, General-in-Chief of the Army; R. L. Russell, resplendent in the uniform of the Chief of Secret Service, Havis, Official Court Jester. The entire class of '20 applied for positions as guard of the Private Stock. As yet President Dowling has not selected a man and keeps the keys himself.

Old Bill Fincher was found the president of a football college. A wonderful president Bill made, as could be ascertained by the number of students in the college.

Wright Brown, My! What a change! Now Beauty Expert for Ziegfield Follies, and as an assistant he has that most efficient architect and editor, Bill Rutherford.

"Stray Power" Boughton is in the employ of American Telegraph and Telephone Company. Quite an odd and delightful occupation Stray Power now boasts. He is employed by the company for no other reason than the fact that all the telephone operators must have someone to amuse them while they are giving wrong numbers. That he is a paying proposition is shown by the fact that no other telephone company can get girl operators.

Well, here is old Blue Wallace now happily married, with comfortable home and eight children—lovely ones!

Edgar Dunlap—yes, he married while in college. He is now in the insurance business in Atlanta. Edgar is very happy right now as his youngest son is about to enter Georgia Tech even as did Edgar in the days of long ago.

Harry Stearns, yes, still a bachelor, but entirely satisfied as president of a female college.

Emerson Holleman, quite a student in the good old days, is now reaping the reward he deserves as chief engineer of the Emerson Sewing Machine Company.

"Buckshot" Vickers is now a cowboy on a western ranch. This seems to be "Buck's" true calling, for he looks as though he was made for the saddle.

Lawrence Kent? Yes, Old Lawrence, quite a change has come over him, for if my eyes do not deceive me, he is speaking. Odd indeed, and in behalf of what? Looking closer I find that Lawrence has actually taken the stump in behalf of the Anti-Prohibition Laws!

Hugh McMath! Where is this place that he lives in? And the cells are padded! Poor boy, went crazy in the endeavor to span the Atlantic ocean with a suspension bridge.

Skinney Pollard. No longer does his name suit, for now he seems quite rotund and healthy. Quite a nice business, and equally as profitable. He has the exclusive light beer and wine monopoly in the State of New Jersey. His distributors are Bee, G. D. Philips, Rogers, Wayt and McIver.

Pugh Stanfield and W. R. Pollard are busily engaged in the manufacture of a patented baby spanker. These worthies received their training in the test course with the General Electric Company which led to the production of this valuable domestic machine.

John M. Heath is a traveling salesman for the Cure-All Patent Medicine Company.

J. L. Carr is quite prominent in the capacity of walking delegate for the I. W. W. Rodriguez is an aspirant for the Presidency of Mexico. Rody has already been victor of two revolutions.

Bill Hawes has recently accepted the position as chief janitor of the Chemical Building of Georgia Tech.

Charles Turner is coaching baseball at Vassar. Oh! Girls!

Then my machine carried me to a distant island. There on a beautiful little plot among the trees and dressed with nature's hand were Glisson, Hilley, Hughes, Jarrard, Link, McPherson, Milner, Minyard and Powers, who tired of the white lights and beautiful women, decided to form a colony for men only.

My visions were brought back again to America, to a little town in Mississippi by the name of Lost Crossing. The town was in quite an uproar. It was circus day. Mayor Cenovar had on his best pair of overalls. Chief of Police Price had his whole force consisting of Humphreys, patrolling the streets. On going out to the circus I found Moise at the ticket office, walking around inspecting the show as Champion, the proud owner of the Famous One Ring Circus.

Busied with the construction of the tent was Simpson, Roberts and Whitner, acting as "razor backs."

Sheffield, I. M., was taking up tickets to the only side show where was found Dawson as the horrible example of "Cigarettes Did It."

On the same platform was my old friend Cockrill, "The Ossified Man." On the opposite side of the tent were Brewster and Pearsall, the strong men, playing catch with 200-pound balls.

Next upon going into the main tent I espied Phillips and Holcombe working cheerfully as acrobatic clowns.

My eyes were beginning to hurt me. My! but I was enjoying this review of my old friends. There are only a few more. Ah! Who's this? Whitely, living happily on Luckie street.
Manning, G. E., Spear, Tanner, Moore and Thompson are just taking a side door Pullman to that place where the climate suits the raiment.

Speed Manning, but why the hurry, Speed? Oh yes, he is on his way to deliver a lecture in behalf of prohibition. Speed has taken the stump in opposition to Kent.

George Ramey is now quite interested in the manly sport, he is an aspirant for the heavy weight boxing title of the world.

Dan Sanford has at last found his life's work, as he is now drawing the covers for Snappy Stories Magazine.

Rusty Newton has taken the stage as leading man in that howling Broadway Success, "Why I want a Harem."

Sleepy Oldknow and Carl Schofield have built up quite a prosperous business as three-ball merchants on Decatur street.

Sam Adams, now a professor in a female polishing school. His official capacity is instructing in the etiquette of the table.

Bradley Askew is now on a very large and well-equipped farm. His only product is corn, which he furnishes to Wikle, Garret and Murrah, manufacturers of "liquidjoys."

Pinkie Arnoll is now the dignified president of a theological school.

Count Basarrate is food inspector in Havana, Cuba. Count's office is in the Havana White Lightning Distilling Company.

Harry Bowick has now left the Athletic Field, after breaking the world's record as a marathon runner. The girls all say that Harry still has speedy tendencies.

G. S. Brown has retired from business since remarkable discovery, "Cornease," it gets the corn.

Bumby is now assisting "Pud" Lowndes in the drawing Emporium.

Bucknell is a prosperous owner of a tonsorial parlor. Buck's chief artists are Jerger, Giddens and McNiece.

The Smiths' Company, composed of B. F., I. H., R. E. and J. L., manufacturers of Door-Knob Hair Tonic. The product is labeled 65% alcohol. Caution: “Do not use externally.”

Gooch has taken Bill McDaniel’s place as soda clerk in the commissary.

Tip Wheeler is the proprietor of The Green River Cabaret, with Puckharber as head waiter and Hainsworth as bouncer.

J. McDonald entered the army, and after rapid promotion, now boasts the position as a sergeant in the Quartermaster Corps.

Reese and Reese are busily occupied in the development of a formula that promises to be even more powerful than Tanlac.

Sam Guess is operating as manager of the Last Chance Gaming Palace. George Lester is still at Georgia Tech, in the capacity of inspector of Division “E.” George has broken the record set by Yap Young, and it is rumored that he is to succeed “Uncle Gus.”

Tom Colley has accepted the responsible position as convict guard for Fulton County. Tom immediately secured the services of Merry, Mason, and Matheson, as assistants.

Jim Conolly holds the chair of modern languages at a deaf and dumb asylum founded by Peck Rylander, who has since become a hermit, after a disappointed love affair, being ousted by the Beau Brummel of the class, H. L. Crumley.

Chris Sherlock is train caller in the Terminal Station at Decatur, Ga.

But there is my picture. I will see if it is not possible for me to see something of myself. Then a crash!!! Ye gods!!! I have kicked over the Retroprospectometer. The work of a lifetime ruined in one short minute by my carelessness.

But what a sound!!!! Very much like the voice of a child. I rubbed my eyes and awoke to find the baby crying in the crib. Above its infant wails could be heard the voice of my wife, “Doc, for goodness sakes get up and get that child to sleep.”
JUNIOR
Junior Poem

Just a year—we'll Seniors be
Unless profs do not decree.
Now's the time to study hard
If we crave to be a bard—
One who seems to know it all.
Remember this and do not fall.

Cling and climb upon the path
Leading from the teacher's wrath
Any road but this is wrong.
So go alone and leave the throng.
Such is the spirit of this song.

SOPHOMORE
Sophomore Class Poem

See the lowly Freshman Class—
O
Oh how green and full of brass,
P
Plenty time to show them better—
H
How they sport that prep-school sweater!
O
Owls aren't as wise as we—
M
Monkeys more like Freshmen be.
O
Only Sophomores are mighty—
R
Remember this and don’t get flighty.
E
Every Freshman—don’t get flighty!

C
Come and ponder on our fame.
L
Look and tremble at our name.
A
As Caesar conquered tribes of Gaul
S
So Sophomores treat Freshmen all.

So Sophomores treat Freshmen all!

IN MEMORIAM

Ernest W. Smith.

WHEREAS, In the providence of God, He has seen fit to take from our midst our beloved and highly respected comrade, Ernest W. Smith, therefore be it
RESOLVED, That in his life he was to us a constant reminder of what was high and noble, so in his absence the memory he left will tend to hold us to the right. Be it further
RESOLVED, That in his death Georgia Tech sustains an irreparable loss, for which its only consolation lies in the consciousness that He who took him never makes a mistake. To that Will we bow in our sorrow. Be it further RESOLVED, That we assure his bereaved family that our tears are mingled with theirs, and out to them go our tenderest sympathy. Be it finally
RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family; a copy spread on the records of the Georgia School of Technology; and a copy published in the BLUE PRINT.

Tech vs. Vanderbilt

Vandy had lost to Tech in 1917 to the tune of 87 to nothing and they were anxious for revenge. It looked like their chances for doing so were good. It was known that in Zerfoss, Goar, Adams, Cody and Lipscomb, they had five players of the highest caliber that had played in the South for some time. In addition, they had an ace up their sleeve. Red Floyd, the great halfback of a few years back, had returned to school, and nothing had been said about him, in the hope that they would spring a surprise on Tech. However, we wouldn't have known that he was in the game, if they hadn't told us afterwards. Tech was right that day, and they all looked alike to her.

The game was a close one throughout. During the first quarter, Tech gained considerable ground, but not enough to endanger Vanderbilt's goal-line. Always when the play was approaching the danger zone, Cody or Lipscomb would hurl their big frames in the fray and gum up the game. Vanderbilt, however, had been able to show no well-sustained offense. Tech's line broke up their plays with ease, leaving the backs fresh to continue their ceaseless hammering on Vanderbilt's secondary defense.

Neither side had showed any end running up to this time, such a thing being considered impossible, due to the condition of the field. But an event occurred then that proved that it is the impossible that wins out in anything. Lipscomb had been forced to retire from the game with a broken leg early in the second quarter, leaving most of the tackling to Cody and Adams. Tech had rushed the ball to Vanderbilt's twenty-yard line, where they were held for downs. Goar punted the ball fifty yards down the field to Buck Flowers, who proceeded to run it back with great ease and sangfroid.
Buck was just as slippery to get a hold of as the ground was to stand on, and between the two they managed to carry the ball seventy yards down the field for a touchdown. It was the prettiest bit of broken field running that had been done on Grant Field that year. This gave Tech a seven point lead, and the half closed with them in that position.

The second half was a repetition of the first, with a little more Buck. None of the other backs seemed to be effective. It was a strange thing to see the lightest man on the field do all the gaining, when according to Hoyle this should have been just the reverse.

Buck scored another touchdown in the third quarter by running twenty yards on a wide end run, and Buck scored another touchdown in the fourth quarter by dashing back fifty yards with another punt, in fact it was Buck did this, and Buck did that, the whole game, and when the game was over, it was Buck 20 and Vanderbilt 0. Without doubt, if he had been out of the game, it would have ended 0 to 0.

Cody put up a wonderful exhibition of football placing in this game. A low estimate would show that he made at least one-half of the tackles made in the game, and Alf Adams and Lipscomb would account for a goodly portion of the others.

Georgetown vs. Tech

This was the first time that Georgetown and Tech had ever met. Georgetown and Pittsburgh bear a sort of brotherly relation to each other, both using the same style of play, and Georgetown being coached by an old Warner man, Exendine. After their game with Detroit, they had come back through Pittsburgh, and Warner had spent all day Sunday coaching them on Tech's plays and showing them how he thought the jump shift could be stopped.

It must be borne in mind that most of the Georgetown men are Irish, real hard-boiled, nail-eating, billy goat Irish, as they say in Savannah. In Johnny McQuade, they possessed a man who had been declared by many experts as the peer of any back in the North. He weighed about 195 pounds à la nature, and was as fast as a streak of lightning. Those of you who remember Bob McWhorter, add fifteen pounds to his weight and a trifle to his speed and driving power, and you have McQuade, a man who had played four years without ever having time called out on him, until he came to Georgia Tech.

The first few minutes of play were not particularly encouraging. Tech was fighting hard, but so was Georgetown. Then came an awful blow. In quick succession, Captain Phillips and Buck Flowers were out of the game. Buck showed the spirit of the team on one of the gamest acts seen at Grant Field in all its history.

McQuade had broken through the Tech defense, and running fiercely had passed every man on the field with the exception of little Buck, who was playing safety. Buck was the only man between him and a touchdown, and he knew it. He also knew that the angle at which the tackle must be made, and the speed and weight of McQuade would be hard and dangerous to stop. But did he hesitate? Not one fraction of a second. He came up at top speed, made a beautiful flying dive, and knocked McQuade clear out of bounds, suffering a broken shoulder in the attempt. He had saved the touchdown, and perhaps the game, but he had been lost to the team in the attempt.

His loss made the team realize that if they were to win this game, with Phillips and Flowers out of it, they must play more than superhuman ball, and they did. Red Barron was in the game for the first time since the Pittsburgh affair, and believe us he was very much in the game. He literally ran wild. His flaming red hair was like the pillar of fire that led the Israelites through the wilderness. It was everywhere in the thick of the fight, and led his comrades to victory.

The first touchdown was scored in the second quarter by the incomparable Judy. He grasped the prolate spheroid firmly in his roomy mitts and dashed the last ten yards over the line with the ease of a motor boat passing through still water. When he makes up his mind to go, Judy just can't be stopped.

The first half ended with the score seven to nothing in favor of Tech. We may have been inclined to let down a little just here, but that was not Johnny Heisman's idea. If we ever had any self-conceit just at this time, he took it out of us, every bit, and then some, and sent the team back to fight harder than ever, and to show the fellows that we could make up somewhat for the loss of the Pittsburgh and Washington and Lee games.

It was in this half that Red Barron did most of his rough work. As one of the Georgetown players remarked after the game, it seemed as if he just wouldn't be stopped. Time and again, the Georgetown players would throw him to the ground but he would rise up again like a jumping jack and be off again. Jack McDonough, too, a freshman, showed up better than he ever had before. He did a good deal of the bucking and did it well, too. It was he who carried the ball over for the second touchdown, after the whole backfield had brought it to the five-yard line.

Early in the last quarter, McQuade was forced to retire from the game with a wrench-ed knee. He had played a marvelous game, and his loss was felt, for from then on, Tech seemed to push the ball around at will. A touchdown was scored during this quarter, making the score 21 to 0 in favor of Tech.
Then came the most spectacular event of the season. With only two minutes to play, Georgetown elected to kick to Tech, thinking that they could surely hold Tech for two minutes. But they had not reckoned with Dewey Scarboro.

Dewey had been sent in to play a halfback just a few minutes before, and had had no chance to show what he could do. But his mind was made up to do something. Georgetown's kick was high and long, but Dewey ran back to the goal line, jumped up and caught the ball, then ran the entire length of the field for a touchdown.

Red Barron and Jack McDonough did the best work for Tech, while the playing of McQuade was a feature of the whole game. Playing with a losing team, and getting the hard knocks he did from a team fighting fiercely, he nevertheless did his best and played a remarkable game, until his forced retirement in the last quarter.

Pittsburg vs. Ga. Tech

October 23 marked the big day for the Georgia Tech Golden Tornado, in a football way. This was the date set for the annual Pitt game, the biggest of the season. The first of these games had been played in 1918, in Pittsburgh, after Tech had gone through four seasons without a defeat, and Pittsburgh had traveled three with the same record. Thus it was but natural that the two best teams in the United States should come together on the gridiron for the purpose of settling the fact as to which was the better team.

It was the misfortune of Georgia Tech to have to play the 1918 season with a freshman team, due to the fact that all the old players had gone to answer the call of their country. However, nothing daunted, the youngsters had set forth to do battle with the Panthers in their own lair, and had been defeated 32 to 0 for the first time in four years.

Thus it was but natural that Tech looked forward with a good deal of anxiety and hope to the meeting of the two teams in 1919. Tech had returned practically all of her 1918 team, and one or two stars from other seasons had returned to help build up the team. But one loss was felt, one place was vacant, and it could not be filled. Joseph N. Guyon, the Objibwa chief, premier football player of the universe, was not back in the fold, and before the season was over, we realized just how much he had meant to us.

The long trip to Pittsburgh was completed without incident, and the team arrived in Pittsburgh on Friday morning before the Saturday of the game. As formerly, they stayed at the William Penn Hotel, where they were the center of an interested crowd, that always came down to look over the Southern warriors.

Promptly at three o'clock the game started, and at precisely 3:11 Tech's hopes of a championship had been shattered. It is best that we pass over this eleven minutes rapidly. What happened? Nobody knows. What was the trouble? Nobody knows. For the first eleven minutes, Tech's team might as well not have been on the field. Pitt had scored two touchdowns and had the ball on Tech's one-yard line with four downs to go. Red Barron was out of the game with a broken leg. Judy Harlan's knee had been hit over again, and was swollen with water until it was twice its normal size, and several of the players had received injuries that might necessitate their retirement at any minute. Thirteen to nothing and the ball on our one-yard line.

The rest of the game was a victory for Tech. After holding so nobly little Buck Flowers punted eighty yards down the field, and the mighty Davies was downed in his tracks. The team looked like a new team. They charged the Pitt line back, and shattered the Pitt attack time after time, as Pitt tried to once more start their steam roller to going. In the middle of the second quarter, Davies booted a nice field goal from the thirty-five-yard line, running Pitt’s score up to 16 points and there it stopped. Twice more during the first half, fate gave Pitt the ball on Tech’s one-yard line, but the inhabitants of Pittsburgh were treated to the rare sight of seeing their hitherto unstoppable team thrown back without the gain of an inch.

Harlan performed one of the most marvelous feats in football history at this time. With water on the knee, so serious as to almost prevent movement, he took the ball nineteen straight times, for a gain of 105 yards to a touchdown on line bucks. Including the ground that he gained, and was called back and penalized, he must have gained close to 200 yards in nineteen successive plays through the line. Pittsburgh sent in new linemen after every play. It looked like they had one hundred men on the squad. But Judy was not to be stopped. He carried it over, and proved to the world that Tech did possess a punch after all.

The work of Harlan was the feature of the game. This big, game fellow gave his whole heart to every play, and tried nobly to single-handedly win the game. Little Buck Flowers’ punting was remarkable as was his work on defense. He was watched so closely on offense that he couldn’t get away much, but in watching him they lost sight of Judy, and Judy gained the ground. Credit must be given to Frank Ferst for the defensive work he put in. He tackled DeHart three times when he tried to carry the ball from the one-yard line over the goal.

Tom Davies was the star. He gained most of the ground and kicked a field goal.

Back in the days of the early nineties, when football was a highbrow pastime among the big universities up East, John Heisman, a stripling of a youth, decided to see what it all was about. So, after scrubbing around the lots of the University of Pennsylvania for four years, he landed a position at end and starred there for one year. After graduating from Penn, his love for the game led him into the coaching field, where he plied his art at Oberlin, Auburn and Clemson, finally being attracted to Georgia Tech. Upon his arrival at Tech, the young athletic instructor had a dream. In the dim gray haze of the future, he had visions of a mighty team from the South that would go sweeping over the land. His dream materialized in the "Golden Tornado" of 1917, the greatest football combination of all time. Despite the taunts from his rivals that he is through, Jack Heisman, the wizard of the great American game, has a few more tricks in his bag that will stagger the best of them. Here's to you, Coach Heisman, the South's greatest exponent of football.

In Coach William A. Alexander, we have a coach that every Tech man loves. The affable "Alex" learned to love Tech while fighting for her as a member of her athletic teams. This endowed loyalty of his gives him great power for instilling fighting spirit and knowledge of the game in his proteges, and has proven a great factor in various successes of the past, that our teams have attained.

Coach Wood has been with us for two years and in this short time he has impressed every one with his sportsman-like and gentlemanly ways. As a line coach, he is a wonder, having learned the science of the game while a lineman on the Notre Dame teams that once wrought such havoc through the middle West.

Last, but far from least, even though he is small, comes "Kid" Clay. "Kid's" scrubbing days on Tech flats stretched over some five or six years and in that time he absorbed much of the Heisman brand of football. All that was said of "Alex's" loyalty for Tech goes for Clay also. At the head of his famous Yannigans, the Kid has been a little bunch of T. N. T., nitroglycerine, and dynamite, that stood set for going off at any old time. If in doubt, ask the varsity.

"Baseball Practice Begins" was the headline across the top of the Technique of February 20, which ushered in the 1919 baseball season.

Successful? Well, that is hard to decide. Tech does not usually consider a season successful when she is beaten by Georgia, but on the other hand, we have the consolation of knowing that we were only bested by two teams, and these two were the best in the South, namely, Alabama, S. I. A. A. Champions, and Georgia. It was certainly a very erratic season, beginning very disastrously, then looking wonderfully rosy, only to pass out in the same way it began.

Briefly the results of the season were as follows: We won nine games and lost nine. Of those we lost, six of them were to Alabama and Georgia, and the other three to teams which we later defeated.

But it is not our plan to soliloquize, but to give a history of the season, therefore we will state the facts and let you draw your own conclusions.

On February 20th, the first call for candidates went out, and of the seventy or eighty who reported to Coach Bean, there were nine old men, these being Capt. Turner, "Bevo" Webb, "Jimmy" Wheeler, "Red" Smith, "Wally" Smith, Pruitt, Murphey, Asbury, Whitely, and Wilder. With these veterans and a good bunch of new material, prospects seemed bright for Tech's greatest diamond year.

After a couple of weeks indoor warming up, the weather turned warm and outdoor practice began. It was now that Coach began to single out the best of the new material and compare them with the old men. Somebody just had to be disappointed, for besides the old men already mentioned, the Freshmen who showed especial class were Dan O'Leary, "Red" Barron, "Buck" Flowers, B. Adams and Wrigley in the outfield, and Spivey behind the bat.

A few weeks of practice rolled by and the budding Techites tied up in a couple of practice games with the Atlantic Steel Co. and a Camp Gordon team, winning one and losing one. Coach Bean gave all the best men a good try-out and practically settled on a varsity for the opening games with Mercer on March 28, and 29.

Here a big surprise awaited the Yellow Jackets. With a team composed of Wheeler, catcher; Webb, 1st base; C. Smith, 2nd base; Turner, 3rd base; W. Smith, S. S.; O'Leary, Wrigley and Adams, outfield; and Pruitt, Murphey and Asbury, pitchers, we were confident of victory, when lo, and behold—Mercer took both games, the first by an overwhelming score.

This defeat though saddening the student body, only made the team more determined to come back, and come back they did the following week by handing out two lickings to Clemson,—5 to 0, and 9 to 3. From then on things began to look brighter, as we defeated Auburn's strong team a couple of times out of twice, and followed this up by a glorious revenge on Mercer, taking both games, 4 to 2 and 8 to 1. The next week we beat Furman three straights, and then the dark clouds began to appear. On a road trip we lost two to Alabama, and split even with Mississippi A. and M. This trip seemed to cast a spell over the Jackets, for in the following games all the mid-season form seemed to disappear and a Jinx began to make himself known.

On May 9 Georgia invaded Atlanta for the first of a four-game series and from then on the fickle Goddess of Victory deserted us entirely and persisted in perching... on the standards of the Red and Black. In every game the story was the same. Georgia got the jump at the start, and although the Jackets came back strong every time, it was too late. Never, however, did the Tech team or student body quit, for when the last man was out in Athens May 17, the whole team was playing their hardest and the band was still "Rambling," after two hours of continuous playing.

This game saw the passing of one Tech player, "Red" Smith, who after playing four years for Tech and gracing several All-Southern teams, finished a great season and left his name as one of the greatest of Southern college infielders. He and Bevo Webb were picked on most of the 1919 All-Southern teams, and both men richly deserved the honor.

No one individual or team can win all the time. We are proud of the 1919 season and prouder still of the 1919 team, for by their wonderful comebacks in every game they showed that they possessed the fight-to-the-end spirit which characterizes every Tech team, whether victors or vanquished.

COACH ROWLAND of Meridian, Miss., in the absence of Coach Alexander, who was in the service, produced an all-around track team. Only five men of the 1918 team reported for duty. They were Holst (Capt.), Pollard, McClesky, Parker, McLellan.

On April 25th Captain Holst led his men against the Sewanee Tigers. It snowed practically all the afternoon so the Jackets had to work under very disagreeable conditions. Charlie Hammond, the Tigers' all-around man, won the high and low hurdles and the running broad jump, Scarboro securing second place in the latter. Pollard tied Burton in the high jump. Captain "Heinie" easily won the hundred-yard dash. The 220-yard dash was won by Caughlan of Sewanee, who was pushed very closely all the way by Captain Holst, who finished second. McClesky easily won the mile and Fouche, a new man, captured second place. The Tigers took third place, their man being fifty yards behind Fouche. Caughlin won the 440-yard dash for Sewanee and McLellan won the half mile for the Jackets. Granger won the discus and Hyers the pole vault. Vandergrift took second place in the shot put.

It was not until the last event that the winner of the meet was decided when Captain "Heinie" finished a close second to the mighty Hammond. The Tigers won the meet on points 43 to the Jackets 42.

The greatest event of the season was the first Annual May Day Meet held at Grant Field on May 3rd. There were 150 entries, the best athletes from twelve Southern colleges. The meet was won by the Sewanee Tigers with 42 points, Tech coming second with 29½ points. Hammond again captured the high and low hurdles and the broad jump, thus scoring fifteen points.

The most exciting race in the meet was won by McLellan, who broke the Tech record for the half mile held by Battle. He was running far back for the first lap and pulled up to third place about half way around on the second lap, maintaining this place until about the last 100 yards and with a mighty burst of speed crossed the tape winner with 2 minutes 5 seconds for the new Tech record. Parker came fourth in this race.

McClesky also set a new record for Tech in the mile with the fast time of 4 minutes 46 seconds, the old record being 4 minutes 49 seconds. The following is a condensed record and results of Tech's entries in the meet:

- 100-Yard Dash—Holst 1, Scarboro, 4.
- Half Mile—McClesky 1, Parker 4.
- Low hurdles—Field 3.
- High Jump—Pollard 3.

Basket-Ball History

With the game staged Saturday, April —, against our old rivals, the Auburn Tigers, Tech's basket-ball season drew to a close. At such a time, it is only fitting that we glance over our team's performance during the past season, and upon it begin to build plans for the future of basket-ball at Tech.

Out of seventeen games played we lost ten and won seven, that is, including the two victories of the second team over Newberry and Piedmont. Our scoring during these games was fair in comparison to the proportion of games lost, but clearly demonstrates the fact that our opponents had quite a bit of edge on us in this respect. A glance at the total of points accumulated during the season will readily show this to be true. The total of points scored by Tech during the season is 206. The total of points secured by our opponents was approximately 372.

The first game played was with Auburn on January 10th. Our team, having been rather hastily assembled, having undergone the difficulties of practice without a court of their own, and not being accustomed to playing together, were scheduled to lose by all who know and follow the game—and they did, but only by the narrow margin of 5 points which represented the product of 5 neatly caged foul goals on the part of the Tigers. Tech failed to shoot a foul goal, but was equal to Auburn in her ability to ring them from the field, chief among the scores being our center, and Captain Gibby Frazer, who was easily the hero of the game.

On January 16th, Tech met Mercer in Atlanta, and Jimmy Brewster having dumbfounded the Mercer goal keepers by his clever sidestepping, Tech managed to run up a score of 30 against Mercer's 26.

The following day we met the Macon Y. M. C. A. at the Auditorium, and Coach pulled the little trick of running in an entirely fresh five in the second half. It worked beautifully, and the tired Maconites were defeated by a score of 28 to 23.

In the first game with Clemson on January 24th, Tech played a better brand of ball than she had yet uncorked, and with the aid of the 14 points secured by Hugh McMath alone, sent Clemson down to defeat to the tune of 32 to 17.

Then came along the much talked of Vandy aggregation and again we were forced to buck up against our old friend, Josh Cody, this little task being assigned to our famous guard, Albert Staton, who proceeded to execute it with great relish and results. We were beaten by a 39 to 21 score, but smiled when we thought of a similar defeat suffered by Georgia, with the score standing at 40 to 18.

The next surprise was sprung on Tech and the public by her defeat at the hands of the Rome Athletic Club by a score of 41 to 33. Mayer played an excellent game, but the 2 by 4 barn in which the game was staged handicapped everyone.

On February 6th, Tech “came back” and defeated Stetson College from DeLand, Fla., with a score of 44 to 33. Mayer, being out on account of injuries received in the Rome game, his position was very creditably filled by Smith.

At Chattanooga we met the University team of that city, who having defeated all their opponents in previous matches, proceeded to continue the dirty work by beating us 25 to 11. A little excitement followed a “friendly” little encounter between “Gibby” and Chattanooga's center, Redd, which promised for a time to develop into one of those good old fashioned free-for-alls, but the clouds shifted, and all was well.
Our next game with Mercer was a battle royal. They were out for blood, but were disappointed when Tech humbled them to the tune of 21 to 16.

Macon Y. M. C. A. then took us on for a return engagement, and they did get revenge by an appalling victory of 64 to 4. The majority of the team have recovered, but we regret to say will never look the same.

Then Clemson followed suit by defeating us 48 to 18. Bill Fincher was out this game, but Frank Ferst played a splendid game in his stead.

Due to injuries received throughout the season, Gibby Frazer was still out of the game when the team met the Clemson Y. M. C. A. for the first time. We were defeated by a score of 40 to 32. Jenks was the outstanding light, with Murrah and Armstead showing up in splendid form.

With three of our first string men, Brewster, McMath and Frazer, out from injuries, Vandy took this opportunity to "rub it in," in our return match by a score of 28 to 3, but the game was hard fought and exciting.

Leaving the smaller teams of Piedmont and Newberry to the second team which defeated them both by scores of 29 to 26 and 22 to 14 respectively, Tech got ambitious and took on the Atlanta Athletic Club of Southern Champions. Although defeated by a 44 to 22 count, Tech in the second half probably played in the best form of the season, the greatest scoring being done by Hugh McMath.

Our return game last Saturday with Auburn wound up the season. The score was close, 21 to 17, but as the fates seem to have decreed Auburn to be the victor in every contest of this year's athletics, what could "we poor mortals" do?

In selecting the letter men for the 1919-20 team, the consistent scoring ability of our three forwards, McMath, Jenks and Brewster, and of Capt. Frazer, our stalwart center, probably did much to turn the tide of decision in their favor, while the splendid defensive work of Staton, who played in every game of the season, Mayer and Bill Fincher deserve such recognition. To Manager Dan Sanford is due great credit for arranging so effective a schedule with the handicap of a late start.

The scrubs made a good showing throughout the season, and with such a nucleus to build upon, Tech's future basket-ball looks great.

HERE was a sound of revelrie by night at the East Lake Country Club when the Class of 1919 celebrated their graduation with their superb Senior Hop. The Commencement exercises of that morning, the farewell reception of the afternoon, and this dance in the evening all seemed to have combined to make the day the greatest and fullest that any of the four-score graduates had ever experienced. Truly it was for them, in more ways than one, a Commencement, and each one seemed bent on drinking the cup of happiness to the dregs for this one day at least.

If ever man saw a more wonderful night than this, some kind fairy spirit must have opened the gates of Heaven to him and let him feast his eyes on perfect granduer. A large, golden moon crept blissfully up a soft eastern sky even as the couples began to arrive at the dance. The old Man in the Moon beamed approvingly from his celestial abode but the envy that shone in his mystic countenance bespoke only too plainly his desire to be mortal just for one short night. Far, far away a million stars twinkled intermittently, their lustre sparkling merrily through the warm, fragrant air. There was a vibrant stillness enveloping the whole world in a peace and happiness that was broken only by the merry voices and the slow, dreamy waltz music.

To the proud, happy Senior this was distinctly a night of nights. Cares were cast to the four winds; his erstwhile dignity and countenance of stern commandment were but a forgotten veil of his yesterdays. Perhaps with the termination of his college days life would not be so gay; perchance he would find the world he was just ready to enter full of hard, cold realities. But just for tonight he was going to have at least one moment of happiness, one that would always be a rare, treasured flower of his memory.
T WAS a gay and care-free throng that gathered at the Junior Prom of 1919. For many, many days the wondrous joys of the Senior at the eve of his graduation had been necessarily restrained or curtailed. It had not been his privilege, in that time of his country's direst need, to enjoy those happy festivities that go to make Commencement Week one of the grandest events of a life-time. Nor had it been his desire, even in the slightest degree, to so far forget the gallant and loyal services of scores of companions and classmates entered in the awful struggle across the waters as to waste his time in vain, idle frivolities.

But now, some seven months after that memorable day when the armies of the world laid down their weapons and signed the famous Armistice of Versailles, there rolled around the final week of the four years of college life of the Class of Nineteen Nineteen. Gone were the restraints of a war-ridden nation; broken were the fetters that held the world in an iron grip for four years; and forgotten were the gloomy, dreary days of sacrifice and self-denial.

Little wonder was it that Commencement Week of last year was anticipated more eagerly than even before; little wonder too that the Prom, which ushered in that incomparable series of joyous occasions, assembled the brilliant host of erstwhile Knights and ladies that it did. To say that the evening was the gayest since Nineteen Sixteen is not enough. But it must suffice to say that it gave promise of the splendor and the merriment of the dances that were to follow.
THE climax of the wonderful series of gaieties of the Commencement Week of 1919 was reached on the evening of the Pan-Hellenic Dance. The other dances of the preceding days had been enjoyed to the very last minute; other Pan-Hellenics of the preceding years had been brilliant affairs; but there was not one of them that was a more grand and glorious occasion than was this charming dance that marked the finale of the happy college days of the men of the Class of Nineteen Nineteen.

The beautiful summer evening provided an incomparable setting for the festive ball. The many lovely girls were exquisitely beautiful too. The prettiest girls of Atlanta and the prettiest girls of the entire state as well as of several neighboring states were assembled there that evening. Many a beaming Senior experienced the very happiest moment of his life when he walked into the gaily decorated ball-room with the sweetest girl on earth; his arm entwined in her's; her heart, thrilled by the exuberance of the happy throng of dancers, beating in unison with his own. His happiness was only equalled by hers and a mutual feeling of a something deeper than friendship stirred within their souls.

The dancing continued till nearly one o'clock when the guests were seated at the tables around the terrace for a delicious five-course supper. The hour of dining was rather tardy and the dancers more than relished every morsel of the delectable foods. Between the courses, the dancing proceeded out on the terrace floor and the savoriness of the dinner was enhanced by the brilliant bits of syncopation and jazz that drifted across the quiet, evening air.

Immediately after the feast the dancing was resumed and as the hours of early morning rolled by the hilarity of the youthful party ever increased. The dancing was again halted as the shrouds of darkness were repulsed by the breezes of the dawn and a little breakfast was enjoyed. Perhaps the meal was not all that one could have ordered at the Georgian Terrace but nevertheless this terrace breakfast was without comparison. A short half hour more of dancing followed this second luncheon before the strains of "Home, Sweet Home" announced the closing hour of the last dance of the year of 1918-1919.

Final Appreciation

The success of this book, if it may be called such, is due to several men who were interested and willing to work. Without their faithfulness and stickability it would have been impossible to have printed this volume. Here we wish to mention a few to whom we are most indebted.

Too much credit cannot be given to Mr. Hancock of Foote & Davies Company, whose patience, splendid ideas, ever readiness to assist and co-operate with the editors toward success, was the greatest of help to us.

Practically all the outdoor photography was done by Mr. Milledge White, whose skill at the game and everlasting interest in our college annual led to greater accomplishments. The success of the individual pictures and groupings is due to Mr. Thurston Hatcher; we wish to thank him for his good work, also the kindness and consideration shown.

We can never thank the student Editors for their untiring efforts. The entire success of the art sections is due to Ray Beall; due credit must be given to George, Phillips, Nelms and Wykle for their splendid editorial work. Murrah did excellent work on the Tech Terror and Tattler and should share in the blessings.

Guess did wonderfully well in accumulating ads, much better than could have been expected, besides being always willing to assist in other capacities.

To others who might have contributed or assisted materially in the making of this book we have nothing but words of praise.

In conclusion, we wish to say the past year has been one of pleasant association, and since we have given up other things to make this, THE 1920 BLUE PRINT, a success, we hope that our efforts have not altogether been in vain.

Follow These Ten Commandments
As Laid Down by the Dominating Class of 1922, Your Ever Deifying Superiors.

1. Thou shalt decorate thy pinheaded domes with the proper sky pieces. These gay chunks of flannel shall not be worn on the day of Our Lord.

2. Thou shalt not be seen with any damsel, fair or otherwise, nor shalt thou incriminate thy milkfed faces with the filthy weed.

3. Thou shalt not wear any high school letters or jewelry. The horror of the penalty is indescribable.

4. Thou shalt not creep upon one tiny blade of grass on the campus with thy slowly mud-scows.

5. Above all things thou shalt hold no meetings unless commanded by the divine and mighty Sophomore Class.

6. At no time let thy bunioned and corn-covered clops hoppers tread the highways after Diana has hung her lantern on high.

7. Do not let thy cringing carasses be smelled around pool halls, Y. M. C. A's, or other places of ill repute, for the devil and all his family loiter there.

8. Do homage at all times to the mighty, everlasting, predominating commandings, unmerciful class of 1922.

9. Be thou seen and not heard, ye harvar-sized, infant of paralysis; breeze not a semi-melody from your bobbing fodder-feeders.

10. Thou shalt obey these commandments and reverence us as thy benefactors, or thou shalt be pulverized and trampled in the dust.

POETRY.

Awake! Awake! The dawn is here. The air is full of atmosphere, on yon Hiwaiian boola tree A ukulele smiles at me: Far down the vale a flock of cheese Lifts up its face to greet the breeze.

What song is that? My heart be still. Tis the voice of a little liver pill: O can it be, or is it but? It is, it is—but where and what? And so, as in the days of yore, We find that two and two are four.

Our beloved sponsor Miss Emma Goldman came to the United States from Russia with relatives when a young woman, and first came before the public in 1893, when she was arrested in New York for inciting to riot by her speeches. She claims to be an atheist and disbelief in all law, whether divine or human. She was arrested and confined repeatedly, and was said to have incited Czolgosz to assassinate President McKinley. She is about fifty-three years of age.

The poem of

LORD ULLIN'S DAUGHTER
expressed as
A PROBLEM IN TRIGONOMETRY.

Introduction. A party of three persons, a Scotch nobleman, a young lady, and an elderly boatman, stand on the banks of a river (R), which, for private reasons, they desire to cross. Their only means of transport is a boat, of which the boatman, if squared, is able to row at a rate proportional to the square of the distance. The boat, however, has a leak (S), through which a quantity of water passes sufficient to sink it after traveling an indeterminate distance (D). Given the square of the boatman and the mean situation of all concerned, to find whether the boat will pass the river safely or sink.

A chieftain to the Highland bound
Cried. "Boatman, do not tarry!
And I'll give you a silver pound
To row me o'er the ferry."

Before them raged the angry tide
X + Y from side to side.

Suppose the river X + Y
Then call the distance Q.

Our floating power expressed in words is
X \[\sqrt{2}\]

"Oh, haste, thee, haste," the lady cries.
"Though tempests round us gather,
I'll face the raging of the skies.
But please cut out the Algebra."

The boat has left the stormy shore
A storny C before her,
C, C, C, C.

The tempest gather o'er her,
The thunder rolls, the lightning
Smiles 'em,
And the rain falls ad infinitum.

In vain the aged boatman strains.
The heaving sides reveal his pains;
The angry water gains space
Both of his sides and half his base,
Till as sits he seems to lose
The square of his hypotenuse.

Suppose the river X + Y
And call the distance Q.
Then dare we thus gods defy?
If we dare, don't you?

Our floating power expressed in words is
X \[\sqrt{2}\]

"No, Willie, if well scalded first.
Why do you ask?"

"Brother said he picked up two of the hardest chickens he ever saw

THE GHOST OF BANQUO.

Methinks I see before me the dreadful conformation of a coagulated conscience for in the small hours of the morn I beheld an apparition which brings again those arctic beads of perspiration upon my manly brow. For in this dream I beheld before the large and towering view of that building where so many are shot but not a sound is heard; yet many go down before the volleys of a thousand guns.

Methought I saw this dim vision of the Academic Building before me, looming up with dreadful thoughts of past executions. But behold I thought I heard the rumble of whispered voices as of honey bees in the hive. Gradually the din increased, the chatter rose to volumes of thunder clouds; angry voices cried out in vehement English over past, present and future transgressions.

My heart went from high to neutral and coated down the hill. What could this conformation be? Why all this breath of ill forebearings? Had any of my past deviations of the straight and narrow path been the cause of these threatening storms? No, and again, no!

Then there came a rush of scarping feet, long cloaks were flying in the wind, sable hats with tassels were being flung into the dust. They had caught the fever, they had succumbed at last. Yes, the Ewings had gone on strike for the same pay check, only twice a month. They demanded to teach no Freshman or Senior as both were incarnations of angels of the asbestos variety, etc.

But alas, the building crumbles,
Then down comes its towering debris.
On and on upon me it comes;
I run but no use, no use.

The whole world hates a quitter,
As when the women skated by Gee!
Wouldn't that be nice.

MAN'S PRAYER FOR 1920.

Dear Lord, give me riches, pile the golden chips at my feet... make me witty, give me the power to sling a wicked line... give me waving yellow hair, eyes of dreamy blush depth, lips that speak of forbidden moments of blissfulness and a skin you love to touch, make me like unto an Arrow collar man... but above all things, put Jazz into my body so that I may wiggle myself into a wonderful Leap Year proposal.

Prunella—Let's cross the street.
Prune—But the street is wet.
Prunella—That's all right—mine are silk.—Widow.

One day last week I wandered up the dormitory steps.
To my battered room of yester-years,
Where I had worked and lived and slept.
A freshman who appeared asleep
Was lying on the bed
He held a picture in one hand
And his face was very red.
He seemed to be o'ercome with grief
And I tried to calm his soul
Then he showed me the picture
And this mournful tale he told.

"She was my freckled-face, blistered nose Alice.
She was an ignorant, knock-kneed young fright.
Her teeth were like stars, and they shone like Mars.
For they only came out at night."
"But nevertheless, I loved her,
And she loved me dearly, too.
I took her to ride, for she was my pride,
And I fed her on brick-bats and glue."

"Now on an April Sunday morn,
The flowers were fresh and sober.
But 'twas on this day, that my Alice, so gay
Lay down and croaked, and passed over."
"She was my freckled-face, blistered nose Alice.
She was mine; I loved her indeed,
But now she rests in the cold, cold sod:
Pushing up daisies and weeds."

THE ATAVISTIC MAID.

Listen, Sweetheart, to my plea:
Cut this highly cultured game.
All this fine gentility
Grows to be exceeding tame.
What I want is low-brow love.

Heavy, knock-down, cave-man stuff:
I'm no cooling turtle-dove;
Treat me rough, kid. treat me rough!

Can the soft and weepy sighs,
Chop the meek and humble pose.
I'm no cut-glass raffle prize.
Grab me with a python grip,
If I struggle, call the bluff.
Want my love? Then take the tip.
Treat me rough, kid. treat me rough!

I don't want my hand caressed
With a nice respectful peck;
Yank me wildly to your chest;
If I fight you, break my neck.
Spilling la-dee-dah-ish guff
Woo and win me with a club.
Treat me rough, kid. treat me rough!

—Berton Braley.

Pull your chair up closer son,
I've a story I have to tell.
It's about my dear old college,
I've always loved so well.

Long years ago the pride of the South,
A moulder of noble men.
She fought a grand and glorious fight.
Always, to the bitter end.

There's come into the field since then,
A very powerful foe.
She's far eclipsed anything we dared dream
In the days of long ago.

Forward is her motto.
When knowledge wins the day.
Her graduates are the leaders.
She's modern in every way.

A moulder of noble men.
A very powerful foe.
The flowers were fresh and sober.
I'm no fragile little rose.
She's modern in every way.

If I struggle, call the bluff.
With a nice respectful peck.
If I fight you, break my neck.
Spilling la-dee-dah-ish guff
Woo and win me with a club.
Treat me rough, kid. treat me rough!

SCANDAL

"I once was pure as the driven snow, but that was a long, long, long time ago.

HOW TO MAKE A HIT WHEN DINING OUT.

If by any chance you should ever be invited to dine in any respectable home, stick to the rules given here and your success will be assured. You will soon be so burdened with invitations that a social secretary will be necessary to answer them. When dinner is announced, instead of offering your arm to some damsels take a running leap for a seat. It is not necessary to wait for the host or hostess to assign you a seat. By all means secure an advantageous position. Much depends upon this.

Drape your napkin gracefully over your chest so as to catch any part of theirs. It's the proper thing to do. Then the waiter will bring you your soup. The soup will then be served. Do not sip the soup from the side of the spoon. Gargle it carefully imitate a leaking water faucet. This will get lots of applause. When the meat is served, grasp your knife firmly in your right hand, and pin the meat to the plate with a fork. If it flies off the plate into somebody's lap, capture it as soon as possible. The hostess will probably tell you the meat is duck. That means for you to duck when the meat flies off the plate. If pie is served, eat the hide as well as the stuffing. If you wait for some time before eating, it will cause you to cast reflections on the maidservant. Eat the pie before someone else, take part of theirs. It's the proper thing to do.

Then the waiter will bring you the slices of their plates. Pour the contents of the cup into the saucer. As it is not enough to cover the bottom of the saucer, you will be at a loss as how to get any of it. You must show your engineering ability by solving the difficulty. Take the saucer firmly between the thumb and the forefinger, hold it in a vertical position, and lick it until it is perfectly clean. If this is done correctly, it will get lots of applause.

The next thing on the program is a small glass bowl containing water with a slice of lemon hanging gracefully over the edge. This is lemonade. Squeeze the lemon in the water, add sugar, and drink rapidly. Smile all the time as to show the hostess you are a connoisseur of drinks.

This ends the meal. Push your chair back a few feet, raise the table lamp, and place the feet on the table. Then take your cob pipe from your pocket and bum some tobacco from your nearest neighbor. In case he hasn't any, use some of your own. You are now ready for the toasts and stories to start. There is worlds of material elsewhere in the Terror and Tattler, and any of it will do. Above all say something that will cause laughter. We offer the following to anyone who cares to use it.

Here's to my dear old stomach. How queer it does feel. It's not a Mexican Revolution in it. From eating this awful meal.

THE DESCENT OF THE COLD WAVE.

(With apologies to Byron's "The Destruction of Sennachair.")

The cold wave came down like a wolf on the fold. On the cohorts whose colors are white and are gold. And the cold of his wrath chills the marrow of bones. Not the kind that you roll mid ratles and groans.

Like the dance of the Shimmie, when Jazz music's played. Our shoulders start shaking and the Shimmie is made; Like the rattle of tin when the "Lizzie" you crank. Our knees take to knocking and bit shank to shank.

For the wrath of the Cold Wave our clothes penetrate. And we put on our "long ones," but sometimes too late; Then the Flu lays us low in one terrible stroke, And the dreams of our dreaming go upward like smoke!

(To one who won't remove his veil.) "I can remove my veil." she said. "Much easier than my glove," she said. "Rather warm for Downsing." "That was fine," "Wood Alcohol." "Make it easy on yourself." "Perfectly characteristic of you." "Neck, egg, drag." "Dope 'em cherry." "Is that so?" "Dear, you cute thing." "Tea at Four." "My Baby's arms." "I have to put 'em on myself." Ex.

YES—AIN'T IT?

Prof.: Why were you late to class this morning?
Stude: Having been trouble, sir. my clothes won't go on.
Prof.: That so?
Stude: Yes sir—I have to put 'em on myself. Ex.

A flea and a fly in a flue were caught. So what could they do? Said the flea. "Let's fly." Said the fly. "Let us flee." So they flew through a flaw in the flue.
A GRAVE MISTAKE.

It was an awful mistake,
An error sad and grim.
I waited for a railway train,
The lights were low and dim.

At last it came, and from the car
There stepped a dainty dame,
And looking up and down,
She straight unto me came.

"My Jack, my dear old Jack," she cried,
And kissed me as she spake,
Then looking again she frightened,
"Oh, what a bad mistake!"

I said, "Forgive me, maiden fair,
For I am not your Jack,
And as regards the kiss you gave,
I'll straightway give it back."

And since that night I've often stood
Upon that platform dim,
But only once in man's whole life
Do such things come to him.

THE DYING HOBO.

Beside an eastern water tank
On a cold November day,
In an empty box car, the dying hobo lay.

His pal sat beside him
With a low and drooping head,
Listening to the last words
The dying hobo said:
"I'm going to a better land,
Where everything is bright,
Where money grows on bushes,
Where you don't have to work,
Nor have to change your socks,
And the good old beer and liquor
Comes trickling o'er the rocks.
So tell my gal in Frisco,
No longer will I roam,
I have seen my last days,
And am on my way to home.
I hear the angels calling,
Were the hobo's last refrain.
So his pal took off his hat and shoes
And caught a West-bound train.

WOULD YOU?

(With Apologies.)

If in this world there were but two
And all this world were good and true,
And you knew no one knew—Would you?

If you dreamed of fair skies blue
And someone sitting by you—Would you?

If the world were good and bright
And I had a date one night.
And then! out went the light—Would you?

If you were in a certain place
And we were sitting face to face—Would you?

A Freshie stood on the burning deck,
But so far as we can learn,
He stood in perfect safety—He was too green to burn.

Shall I brain him, cried the hazer,
And the victim's courage fled.
You can't—he's a Freshman—Just hit him on the head.

He—if I stole a kiss would you scream for your parents?
She—No, not unless you wanted to kiss the whole family.—Awgwan.

Foxwell—I was twenty-two the second of April.
Clementia—A day late, as usual.
—Orange Peel.

TO RAMBLIN' WRECK.

In the heart of every loyal man.
Who hails from Georgia Tech,
There's a song that stands supreme o'er all—
It's good old Ramblin' Wreck!

We honor The Star Spangled Banner,
And the strains of Dixie too;
But our old war-song by the Ramblin' Band,
Drives us crazy thru and thru.

There are songs that make us happy
While others make us sad,
But when Frank says: "Ramble, Fellows!"
We all go simply mad!

We love this song at any time,
But we like it best by Heck!
When the Georgian band plays Glory,
And is drowned by Ramblin' Wreck!

SPECIAL EXTRA.

The Tech Terror and Tattler, not to be out-done by the other great newspapers, has decided to give its readers a chance to distinguish themselves in the poetical world, and take their place alongside Jack Dempsey, Buck Flowers, Eugene B. Debs, Lenin, Trotsky, and Senator Reed in the limelight.

The one sending in the best line to the limerick given below, will be presented with a handsome autograph portrait of our beloved sponsor, Emma Goldman.

The rules of the contest are simple. Send in with your answer your father's mother's maiden name, age when she married, how many of her children died with influenza, your first sweetheart's name, present sweetheart's name and address, the name of the last sweetheart you named, and the date when she married. How many of her children are living? How many of her children died? Where she was born? How many years ago? What did she do for a living? By whom was she married? By whom was she divorced? At what age did she die? Her maiden name? What did she look like? What were her favorite hobbies? What were the last words she said? Where she was buried?

The graduate of today enters a world electrical.

Gathered from the distant waterfalls or generated by the steam turbine, electric power is transmitted to the busiest city or the smallest country place.

Through the co-ordination of inventive genius with engineering and manufacturing resources, the General Electric Company has fostered and developed to a high state of perfection these and numerous other applications.

And so electricity, scarcely older than the graduate of today, appears in a practical, well-developed service on every hand.

Recognize its power, study its applications to your life's work, and utilize it to the utmost for the benefit of all mankind.

HELP

A ten-year-old girl, fresh from her first skating on the lake, dashed into a room where her sister was sitting, "holding converse" with her most particular young man acquaintance.

"Sis, you ought to have seen me," she breathlessly cried. "The first time I stood up my feet went right up in the air and I came down plump on my—"

"Minnie," interrupted the sister, cutting uneasy.

"Well, what?" asked Minnie. "My legs just scooted from under me and I came down plump on my—"

"Minnie," screamed her sister, leave the room instantly!"

"But he's hurt," said Minnie. "Hurt?" asked the sister; "Who's hurt?"

"Why brother; I came down on him, only you wouldn't let me tell you."—Ex.

MESS HALL RECIPES

Breakfast Bacon
Take a handful of pine shavings and remove the interior. Add a little sherry wine and sweeten to taste. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and other cosmetics. Now turn them over with a spatula and serve hot off the gridle.

Mock Turtle Soup
Take a piece of white paper and with a pencil draw from memory the outlines of a hen. Then carefully remove the feathers, one gallon of boiling water into a sauce pan and sprinkle a pinch of salt on the hen's tail. Now let it simmer. If the soup has a blonde appearance, stir it with a lead pencil, which will make it a bruette soup. Let it boil two hours. Then coax the hen away from the sauce pan and shut her in the hen house. Serve the soup hot with a glass of ice water on the side.

Planked White Fish
First be sure that the white fish is not carp. Then saw a rib plank from the fattest tree in the front yard. Place white fish on plank, feet first. The juice of a lemon squirted in the left eye of the fish will make it look better. Add sprin of cabbage, a bunch of bananas and the whites of 19 eggs. If eggs are expensive use grape fruit. Place in a saucepan and heat it with a pinch of baking soda. Let it simmer two hours. Serve hot and remove the interior. Add a little flour to calm them and let them simmer. Serve with tomato catsup or molasses, according to your location on the map.

Apple Fritters, Perhaps
First catch your fritter. Be sure it is a young fritter. (The way to tell he is a young fritter is to count his teeth.) Remove the shell and add a picker of apple sauce. Place this in a saucepan and heat it with a pinch of baking soda. Let it simmer two hours. Serve hot and smile readily while eating.

Imitation Prune Pie
Take a dozen knot holes and peel the skin of a prune. Add a cup of sugar. Stir the mixture with a spoon and put it in a hot oven. Bake gently for six hours and then add a little Jamaica ginger. Serve cold with tea wafers and talk fast while eating.—T. B.

NOTICE GIRLS

Struggle fiercely at first and then appear to be gradually overcome by his superior strength. Close your eyes and hold yourself rigid, relaxing a little if the kiss endures. Take your breath in little gasps. Let a variety of expressions flood your face; anger, sorrow, despair, joy—it is important that all these be registered. Struggle occasionally, as if to free yourself.

Scratch and bite, if opportunity presents itself, but do not dig too deeply.

As he is about to release you, faint if possible. If you observe these instructions carefully he will most probably kiss you again.—Orange and Blue.

NEVER CAN TELL

She's mine! All mine!
But she flirts and she drinks and
She smokes cigarettes;
And when she goes out
They say she forgets
That she's mine, all mine!—Cornell Widow.

We were gathered around the fireside.
After all the work was through,
Some of us were happy,
And some were feeling blue.

I'll tell you, boys, somebody said,
June ends my college career,
I'll hate to leave the old place,
And the friends I hold so dear.

The Journey through life is a trying one.
And our troubles come thick and fast.
What helps us most to bear them,
Is the friend that sticks to the last.

There's a girl I've met in Atlanta,
So different from the rest.
She's always smiling and happy,
I know I like her best.

I've labored long and earnestly,
And I'll tell you what made me "home.
When the sailing was kinder rough,
And I felt like going home.
It was just the thought of what she'd say,
When I admitted I couldn't stick,
So I stayed on the job through thick and thin,
And now I've turned the trick.

Some distant day, when I've married the girl
For whom I have been seeking,
I hope I can say. I like her as well.
As I do Fan Esther Meakin.

Sam's gal is long and tall
And her calves go fat and low.
Sam's gal wears silks and satins,
My gal wears calico.
Sam's gal is fast and speedy,
My gal is slow and good;
Think I'd swap my gal for Sam's?
You damn right I would.
Thursday was a holiday; too good to be true. The students wanted Friday and Saturday too. Levinsky, Sal Hepatica-Van Buren Denny was always saying what he would do.

The faculty be damned; I'll go home Wednesday night. I'll do as I please; stay as long as I like.

Now Adolphus Sylvester Martindale Van Gump was what the boys called a sissified chump.

You all know the tale; Friday morning at eight Levinsky came staggering in, ten minutes late.

Now look at Adolphus so gentle and meek. He leaves when he wants to and stays gone a week.

HOW TO KISS.
Kissing comes by instinct, yet it is an art which few understand properly. A lover should not hold his bride by the ears in kissing her. A more graceful way, and quite as effective in preventing the bride from "getting away," is to put your right arm round her neck, your fingers under her chin, raise the chin, and then gently but firmly press your lips to hers. After a few repetitions she will find out it doesn't hurt, and become as gentle as a lamb.

WHY SO PAST?
"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"
"I'm going to the devil, Sir," she said.
"Then come with me, my pretty maid—"
"I'm in no such hurry, Sir," she said.—Ex.

ADVICE TO WOULD-BE MALE VAMPS.
First select a girl (a pretty one),
and bet her a dollar you can kiss her without touching her.
This sounds impossible and will appeal to her sporting blood.
Next kiss her and pay the dollar like a good fellow.
Who wins?—Ex.

WE'LL SAY SO.
"How is it that Arthur never takes you to the theatre nowadays?" queried Marie.
"Well, you see," her friend replied, "one evening it rained, and we sat in the parlor."

"I DOUT IT"

If a pair of red lips were turned up to your own,
With no one around to gossip,
Would you pray for endurance to leave them alone?
Maybe you would, but I doubt it.

If a tiny white hand you were permitted to hold
With a wonderful softness about it,
Would you leave it and drop it
With never a squeeze
And never a squeeze
Maybe you would, but I doubt it.

If a tapering waist were in reach of your arm
With a womanly plumpness about it,
Would you argue the point 'twixt the right and the wrong?
Maybe you'd do it, but I doubt it.

And if by these tricks you should win a heart
With a delicate sweetness about it,
Would you guard it and keep it
And play the good part?
Maybe you would, but I doubt it.

YES, YES.
The boy stood on the burning deck.
His feet were full of blisters.
He tore his pants on a rusty nail,
And now he wears his—uncle's.

Franklin Was Right!

Benjamin Franklin writing from Paris to his nephew in Philadelphia said—"and as you will before that time have come to believe it is a very decent warrant of stability to serve one thing faithfully for a quarter of a century".

The firm of Foote & Davies Company are now in their thirty-third year of continuously serving the South in all matters pertaining to typography, without a change in the management; all the time working with you as well as for you.

Thirty-three years is not a great age when compared with the pyramids, but when the rapid development of our section and the many changes which have taken place are taken into consideration, it is, as Franklin said—"a very decent warrant of stability".
