Senior Poem

Behind, already fading into blue,
Where distance lends enchantment to the view,
Are college halls. Before our eager eyes
The Old retires, supplanted by the New.

We mount in haste the chariot of the years
And laugh to scorn the thought of future fears.
Success (elusive mist) is near at hand;
The stars are steeds and we the charioteers.

And each year, as it rolls along the plain
Of fertile fields, replete with golden grain,
Reaps steadily a harvest rich, of life—
And life, once lived, may not be lived again.

So gather ye the harvest while ye may,
For many fall, along the harvest way,
And when you reach the Mountains of the Dawn
Be well prepared to find beyond—the Day.

Senior Class History

In September of 1923 Atlanta was startled at the sight of eight hundred crude strangers, rubber-necking around the city, taking in the Bonita, Grant Park, Tom Pitt's five cent chocolate milks, buttermilks, chic debs, and other sights so dazzling to the uninitiated.

Thus it was that the Class of 1927 entered the arena,—a motley crew of prep school heroes, self-elected geniuses, and ruralists who smacked of pine-needles and barns. Proud we were of our tag-new worsteds with high-water breeches, purchased expressly to wear up here, and why not be when they had been admired by high school sweethearts as they bade farewell with tender caresses to the college-men-to-be. However, water wears away stone, and likewise our rough edges and conceits were worn smooth by connections with the stern, debonair members of the Class of '26. High school heroes were made freshmen and rubes turned to be gentlemen.

Finally we became a real class. Our first leaders were chosen—to Karl Nixon, Sam Murray and George Baker, fell the honors of President, Vice-President, and Secretary and Treasurer. At this time we would have felt out of place without the old shacks for which we had a kindly feeling in spite of their threatening to fall on us at any moment. Most of our fraternities were mingled with boarding-houses up and down North Avenue, which was made even more of an eye-sore by the dilapidated wooden stands still on Grant Field. John Murray captained the Freshman football team and Cecil Jamison the Freshman basketball team. Sam Murray was elected our representative to the Student Council. Besides losing many of our numbers thru scholastic failures our freshman year went by without mishap. This does not mean that lack of brilliant performance in school work existed, for Twenty-Seven had some men who made a name for themselves scholastically. C. B. Myers averaged 96.14, breaking the school record.

Sorry to lose friends who had dropped out as we gathered again, we began our Sophomore year by naming Sam Murray, President, Walter Parrish, Vice-President, and Molly Williamon, Secretary and Treasurer. We were extraordinarily well represented on varsity teams to be only Sophomores. The best known were Vaughn Connally, Karl Nixon, Sam Murray, John Murray, Cliff Schwab, Cecil Jamison, and Tom Angley. This year saw the completion of the new stadium, the addition to the Chemistry Building, the new baseball field, and remodeling of Knowles Dormitory. Gilbert Boggs won the large Tau Beta Pi scholarship cup.

In the third year the Class of '27 distinguished itself as an outstanding class by winning laurels in many lines of activities. Sam Murray was again honored with the Presidency, Cecil Jamison made Vice-President, and Willkerson Gunn, Secretary and Treasurer. A majority of the football team which beat Georgia in 1925 were Juniors of the Class of '27. On the basketball quintet two juniors were found, Jamison and Parrish. Sam Murray was elected Vice-President of the Student Council. Contrary to custom Juniors held the positions of Editor of the Yellow Jacket, Business Manager of the Blue Print, and President of the Marionettes. These were Barret, Boggs, and Scherffius.

Then came upon us the climax of our school lives—the fourth and last lap of our fierce race. Some had fallen out in the first quarter, some were beaten in the second, others could not stand the pace in the third; then, as the starter fired the gun for the last lap, we found only 275 in the race out of 800 to start. When the last lap started, Sam Murray was shown the esteem of his classmates by being elected their President for the third consecutive time. Cecil Jamison was re-elected Vice-President, and Judge Bearden made Secretary and Treasurer. As this book goes to press with nearly 250 survivors racing toward the goal—the coveted cap and gown, nearly all important campus positions are filled capably by members of the Class of '27. While all will not come out victorious, on the whole we have run the race well and fought to keep the White and Gold on top.
