Alpha Tau Omega was founded at Richmond, Virginia. This was the first fraternity to be founded after the Civil War. After twenty Southern chapters had been installed, the first Northern chapter was chartered. This fact is of interest as this fraternity is the first of Southern origin to maintain chapters in the North.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon was founded at the University of Alabama in 1856. Being one of the oldest fraternities, it has in its history, many interesting incidents. One of especial interest is the woman member of the Kentucky Military Institute chapter who kept the ritual and chapter records during the Civil War. For this service she was initiated when the chapter was reorganized.

The Kappa Sigma Fraternity was founded at the University of Virginia. This fraternity is one of the largest—having one hundred and two active chapters. From its inception it was intended that Kappa Sigma should become widespread, and this policy has been followed, but in no means a radical fashion.

Sigma Nu originated from a secret society known as the Legion of Honor organized at the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, Virginia, in 1868. Northern extension of Sigma Nu began in 1884 with the establishment of a chapter at the University of Kansas. In due time the fraternity entered the East completing a well-balanced national representation.

Phi Delta Theta was founded at Miami University. Its founders intended that the organization should expand, and this policy was followed until checked by the Civil War. At the close of the war, the policy was resumed. During the fourth decade, by establishing chapters in the East, it became national in extent.

The Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity was founded at the University of Pennsylvania in 1850. Due to the many Southern members of the Alpha chapter, Southern expansion resulted. The Civil War, however, destroyed much of this work. The closing of the war instituted a more conservative policy. Local clubs are required to exist several years before being granted a charter.
Pi Kappa Alpha was founded at the University of Virginia. Expansion was geographically restricted until 1904 when the fraternity decided to enter the Southwest. All bans were removed in 1909, and since that time expansion has been steady.

Chi Phi, as it exists today, is the result of successive unions of three older organizations, each of which bore the same name. The idea of expansion was early manifested, and chapters were rapidly organized. However, the Civil War killed all but the parent chapter, but at the cessation of hostilities, new chapters rapidly sprang into existence. At present the roll is thirty.

The Beta Theta Pi Fraternity was founded at Miami University. It was the first fraternity to originate west of the Alleghenies. Much of its growth was obtained by chapters formed from existing organizations and by union with two other fraternities.
