Here, grouped around the Military Color Guard, are the results of the candid camera’s visits to the military camps and drill fields. Close observation will reveal that the whole is made up of three distinct groups. At the top are the shots made at the Coast Artillery summer camp in Pensacola, Florida. Wearing uniforms that look “cool” enough to fry an egg in December are the boys of the C. A. C. who labored for six long weeks at the “Country Club” of Pensacola. We see them manning the big guns on the coast, preparing to fire on the pistol range, and loafing in the sun with an Army “big shot.”

Gathered in the center are shots made at school during drill. Here one can find Colonel Martin and staff in the reviewing position, scenes from the Armistice Day celebration at Grant Field, platoons in line, and the C. A. C. officers at “front and center.”

To complete the page our camera clicked at the Infantry camp in Anniston, Alabama, probably better known as Hades, Inc. By so doing it has shown here the various activities of the boys in the land of excessive sunshine and scarce shade. One shot is of particular interest,—always we are interested in the fairer of the opposite sex.
AN OUTSTANDING SOURCE of many of Tech's "tall tales" is the annual naval cruise. To some of us who are not naval students, many of these tales seem almost incredible. Consequently, to avoid being nominated for the liar's club, last summer's cruisers brought back substantiating evidence in the form of candid camera shots. For four weeks these men traveled in the vicinity of Cuba and Puerto Rico aboard two of Uncle Sam's cruisers. That their activities were varied and somewhat unusual cannot be denied. Above they may be seen visiting an old fort, courting dusky senoritas, exhibiting their "chest spinach" in the sun, dancing at the Governor's Ball, and performing the favorite pastime of all naval cruises—beer guzzling.
