What you should know about the IS Desk today...

- As of 1/3/07, UMLAT appears to not be recognizing PRINT AVAILABLE for Journal Titles. For example, American Libraries, Journal of motor control, Annual review of neuroscience, etc all have volumes in the stacks and UMLAT is reporting NO PRINT AVAILABLE. An e-resource report has been submitted.

- from Jody Thompson: "If architecture students are looking for campus building drawings, please direct them to the Archives. In our Reading Room, we now have a PC set up to access the on-line drawings." 1/3/2007

- To Open a stuck DVD drive: If the button on the DVD drive doesn't open it, one other convoluted way is as follows: Open Windows Media Player Program. Hit the small down arrow alongside the "now playing" button. Choose CD Drive. (If that is not a choice, then choose MORE OPTIONS... and DEVICE... then CD/DVD) Then hit ALT to bring up the Menu bar along the top... choose PLAY then EJECT... If that doesn't work, try rebooting machine. (If nothing works from above, just reboot the computer.)

- Interesting Oitation Tool. You enter the ISSN and it gives you cite for MLA, APA, AHA, and Chicago style.

- The printer shuffle
In an attempt to reduce problems associated with color printing calibration, we have relocated the HP Color LaserJet 5500 to the LMC Productivity Lab (behind the UA station). We are not activating the LMC Productivity color printer until we have proper signage near the printers notifying students of this change. Students will still need to go to LMC Color, and the station will simply serve as a new release station. There are four black and white printers, two at each end of the lab. Please let me know if you have any questions.

QUESTIONS

Which computer is the one with off-campus SPT? I tried the one we used over the summer and that didn't work, nor did the one we used before that? Brian 10/6/2006

The Government Documents workstation is on L44N1 and should replicate the experience of an off-campus user. In most cases, you will not have to login into L44N1 each time you sit down at the workstation. Off 10/20/2006
