The supreme goal, the highest achievement of all the brass shining, mirror-gazing officers of the Army, Air Force and Navy is the National Society of Scabbard and Blade. It is composed of men who have proved, in the eyes of the military, outstanding leadership and intelligence.

Theirs is a national military honorary society. The principal aim of the organization is to promote a feeling of unity among the military leaders and to maintain a high standard in the military activities of the corps. This year Scabbard and Blade brought Tex Beneke and his orchestra to Atlanta for the annual Military Ball.
Although the name might be new, this organization has been quite active around the naval unit for the past few years. The purpose of the council is to foster spirit and unity in all of the midshipmen's extracurricular activities. Members of the council organize and help administer the unit's participation in intramurals. The annual Navy Ball in the fall and the Spring Picnic are direct results of this organization's labors.

Membership is determined by election from all four classes. The officers of the Council are elected by the members.
Every military organization takes great pride in a crack drill team, and the Air Force R.O.T.C. is no exception. Every Tuesday and Thursday finds the members of the team out on the drill field, learning new maneuvers and polishing up on already familiar formations. Membership in the organization is strictly voluntary.
