Councils and Clubs
The Activities Council was formed for the purpose of introducing Georgia Tech's many organizations to all members of the student body, and particularly to incoming freshmen. Each member of the Council has been elected to represent his particular organization. Bill Moss is the current president, and assisting him is vice-president George Rittlemeyer, secretary P. K. Lok, and treasurer Mandeville Smith.

The high point in the Activities Council's program is the annual presentation of the Activities Fair, in which each campus organization may present itself by displaying its activities and purpose. The Council assumes additional responsibilities in its efforts to improve the general status of organizations on the Tech campus.
The St. Patrick's Council is an unaffiliated organization whose chief purpose is to promote interest in the honorary and professional societies of the academic departments in the school. Its principal function is the promoting, planning, and coordinating of Engineers' Week. The Council assumes further responsibility during this week by entertaining a group of fifty outstanding high school students who have been selected by local chapters of the Georgia Society of Professional Engineers on the basis of their ability and interest in the field of engineering.

Officers of the Council include Wayne Waddell, president, Richard DeVane, vice-president, Bill Moss, secretary and treasurer Perry Peck.
Alpha Phi Omega is a national service fraternity organized on the principles of the Scout Oath and Law. Its members ordinarily are men who have been registered members of the Boy Scouts of America, and their primary objective is to render service to the campus, the community and to Scouting. This year's president is Wayne Waddell; other officers are vice-president John Klinke, secretary Bill Sibley and treasurer Jack Lamer. Activities of Tech's chapter include sponsoring the "Ugliest Man on the Campus" contest and supervising the polls during the campus elections.
a new organization on the campus, the Society of Exploration Geophysicists had its roots in the former Geology Club. The new name was acquired when a charter was obtained from the National Society of Exploration Geophysicists. This year the organization was guided by Bill Scott, president, Jim Tucker, vice-president, and Jim Downs, secretary-treasurer.

The primary purpose of the organization is to foster in the Tech students an interest in geology, mineralogy and their relationships to engineering. As part of the regular programs, field trips are sponsored and in addition there are numerous speeches by prominent authorities in this field.
The Bulldog Club is composed of outstanding members of the Junior and Senior classes. The Bulldogs sponsor, direct and provide officials for all intramural contests. During the annual Homecoming weekend, the Bulldogs judge the Homecoming decorations and the "recks" in the parade, officiate at the Freshman Cake Race and supervise the Homecoming Dance.

In the fall, during the week preceding the Homecoming festivities and in the spring during the week preceding the IFC Weekend, the Bullpups are a colorful campus tradition in their white pants, red shirts, black coats and derbies.

Fast Cars Built by Auto Club

With President Bill Campbell at the wheel, the Georgia Tech Auto Club is rolling along in high gear. Established just two years ago, the organization is now one of the most popular on the campus. Its weekly meetings include movies and guest speakers. A present activity is the building of a dragster, in which a Chrysler V-8 engine, which was donated to the club, will be installed. Frank Gossett is vice-president, Fred Lieb is the secretary and Gordon Johnson handles the vault keys.
The Georgia Tech Camera Club was honored this year as the most outstanding organization on the campus with the presentation of a trophy by the Activities Council. Under the guidance of Dr. Mantel of the Social Science Department, the club has added to its facilities so that it now maintains a well-equipped, air-conditioned darkroom.

To help the members learn more about photography, three contests were held each quarter, which were judged and criticized by outstanding professional photographers. Much of the material for these contests came from the quarterly model sessions which had professional models as subjects. The club also had two field trips; one to Chattanooga and the other to the Kodak Color Processing Laboratory.

Camera Club Selected as Tops
The Chinese Club at Tech, under the leadership of Peter Yeung and Faculty Advisor Kendall Su, provides an opportunity for the Chinese students at Tech, regardless of major, to get together for purposes of conversation and the planning of activities. The social functions include dances, parties of various kinds, and picnics when possible. The club is helpful in aiding its members in problems incurred in campus life by providing that intangible, but vital aid, fellowship.

Frank Liu is Secretary-Treasurer and James Chu is Social Chairman.
Service Is Purpose of Circle K

The Circle "K" Club, although a relatively new club on the Tech campus, has increased in popularity so that it is now one of the finer organizations of its kind. A service club, Circle "K" had its best year to date these past three quarters. Under the leadership of Bob Smith, president; Carter Terrell, vice-president and Jere Goldsmith, secretary and Theron Jennings, treasurer. The membership drive was highly successful.

The club has worked continuously under the guidance of its sponsors, the Northside Kiwanis Club, to become a useful organization on the campus. The members have donated much of their time and effort to many worthwhile projects both on and off the campus.
Although divided into two sections, each representing the members who are in school at two different times, the Tech Co-op Club actually works as a unit. The club is active in intramural sports, giving medals for the winners in softball, pingpong, chess, and tennis. Other functions sponsored by the club are the two annual smokers with the Briarcan Society, dances at various times, and aiding the incoming co-op freshmen to get organized. Section II of the club has charge of cushions and sun visors at the football games in the fall, and the Kampus Kapers dance is offered by Section I in the winter. A loan fund for co-ops is available under the auspices of both sections. The organization of the club is such that co-ops may enjoy as many privileges as regular students do in way of extra curricular activities.

Drama Tech's Theatre-In-The-Round Is
DramaTech, the campus dramatic club, offers fun while learning the different phases of theatrical work. Whether one is interested in acting, producing, or directing, he will find in DramaTech an excellent opportunity for developing his interest.

Three times a year, once each quarter, DramaTech presents a play. Under the expert direction of Mrs. Mary Nell Ivey, the club has become renowned for its ability to present plays of a widely diversified range. From the comedy of "Harvey" to the heart-warming "Mr. Roberts" to the tense drama of "Home of the Brave," DramaTech has successfully run the gamut of modern drama.

Drama Tech's very effective use of the unique theater-in-the-round has won acclaim in a national theatrical publication.

All students, faculty members, and employees of Georgia Tech who are interested in working with DramaTech are welcomed to join.

The Georgia Tech Glee Club, under the excellent direction of Mr. Walter Herbert, has gained a reputation of being one of the most skilled and most widely traveled organizations on the campus. Last summer Mr. Herbert and several members of the club toured Japan with the Miss Atlanta show. This year the club sang at a Birmingham theater, Brenau College, at the Sugar Bowl game in New Orleans and made a return engagement to the famous Blue Room of the Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans.

Band Entertains at Ball Games

The fancy stepping Band looked better than ever this fall while executing tricky maneuvers during the half-time show. Following a full schedule of events highlighted by the Sugar Bowl game, the band found little time for relaxation during the fall quarter. The band also furnished music for Tech Night at the Fox and was on hand to bolster the basketball team's spirit at the home games.

Talent from local high schools is used by Tech Band for halftime performance at football games.
Flying Club Gives Lessons

The Flying Club, although handicapped most of the year by the loss of its plane and lack of funds, is now, under the leadership of president Phil Morris, vice-president Roy Harris and secretary Wayne Burnett, rebuilding itself into an active organization. All requirements for becoming a licensed pilot are offered, and, assisted by the Aeronautical Engineering Department, the club keeps its operating costs low. Any student wishing to further develop his aviation interests in invited to join.
A new organization on the campus this year, the Veteran's Club is already very active. The only limitation to membership is that members must be veterans and students at Tech. The club is attempting to promote the social and cultural welfare of its members and to better the student-faculty relationship. At the beginning of each new quarter the club strives to aid the incoming veterans in their transition from service to college life. The club sponsors picnics, dances, parties, and other forms of social entertainment for its members and occasionally have speakers at their meetings.
The Veteran's Club invites many outstanding speakers for their bi-weekly Friday night meetings.

Radio Club Exists for "Hams"

The conspicuous penthouse atop the Physics building houses radio station W4AQL. Its eighty members selected Fred Keith president and two vice-presidents, Edwin Buck and Charles Branham. Freddie Wood was elected secretary and Stan Adams, treasurer. The costly equipment is available to any licensed member and boys working for their license are benefited by having membership in the club.

These "hams" are not content with just communicating all over the world, however, for during the year they journey to Stone Mountain, on which a portable station is erected and used for a week-end.
The Management Club, a student organization of the Industrial Management Department, is open to all IM juniors and seniors. So that its members may better acquaint themselves with the management phase of industry, the organization sponsors lectures and field trips. Social functions also find their way into the schedule. Assisting president Theron Jennings are vice president Frank Hollberg, secretary John Klinke and Emory Ansley, the treasurer.

The Physics Club strives to bring a more rounded knowledge of science to Tech students by offering a series of speakers, field trips, and any other convenient means available to them. Most of the speakers seek to point out how science is being used by industry at this time. Anyone is eligible as long as he is attending Tech. The club has a picnic during the spring quarter each year and participates in engineer’s week. The club this year has been very ably staffed with President Charlie Touchton, Vice-President James Downs, Secretary Fred Dyer, and Treasurer William T. Lanier.

The Georgia Tech Philosophy Club, under the leadership of Roger Gilbertson and Tom Umstead, has opened the door to discussion of philosophical subjects for all Tech students who are interested. The club sponsors lectures by well-known speakers on the subject. A one-time requirement for eligibility for membership was to have taken the philosophy course offered here. However, no such restriction is now in force, and any student may join. The club lends a liberal touch to campus life. Arnold Berlin is Treasurer.

For his sincere efforts and enthusiasm for the success of the Georgia Tech Letterman’s Club, the T Club proudly dedicates these pages and their new T Club building to Coach Robert Lee Dodd.

DAN SHEPPARD

The Georgia Tech Toastmasters Club this year was guided by Dan Sheppard, president, Garnett Keith, vice-president, Jim Peacock, secretary, and Hugh Roberts, treasurer.

Toastmasters is more than a club—it is an education. It is especially useful on a technological campus, since it seeks to improve, through practical experience, the ability to speak in public. Weekly, through planned programs, members deliver prepared and extemporaneous speeches, thus constantly improving their power of speech.
Religion
The Young Men's Christian Association is one of the most popular and worthwhile organizations at Georgia Tech. Every student, in fact, by virtue of a portion of his activity fee allotted to the "Y," is a member. Many students become active members by joining any of the many organizations commissioned by the "Y," the Alpha Phalanx and Sigma Phalanx clubs, the Rec Council, the T-book staff and others. The presidents of these clubs constitute the Cabinet or the nucleus of the "Y."

The "Y" building, a familiar landmark on the campus, houses, in addition to these groups, several other school organizations. Ping pong, pool, magazines and the services of a barber shop are offered.

The Alpha Phalanx Club members did a fine job this year in carrying out the indoctrination of some 400 freshmen students at the Freshman Camp which is annually sponsored and directed by Alpha Phalanx. Under the leadership of Ronnie Hanna, president, Ellison Smythe, vice-president, Bobby Youmans, secretary, and Byron Chapman, treasurer, the programming and directing of all events during the weekend was very well handled. Leading upperclassmen, faculty members and school officials all gave useful hints and words of advice to the entering students. The Club also sponsored the debates that were held during the winter quarter in which the Tech debate team defended the students from the Agnes Scott team and the Faculty team.

Alpha Phalanx – "Y" Service Club
Sigma Phalanx Club, an organization sponsored by our active YMCA, carried on a large number of varied activities for the entertainment of Tech students. These functions were directed by Brian Sanford, president, Allen Strickland, vice-president, Laurence Beall, secretary, and Paul Swindler, treasurer. These activities included the planning of hayrides, a number of parties and deputations to some of the surrounding women's colleges which is certainly favorable to all Tech students. The deputations this year included Wesleyan, Agnes Scott and GSCW. Usually the girls from these schools make return trips to Tech and everyone has a great time.
World Student Fund Has 5 Guests

The Y.W.C.A. World Student Fund Committee wishes to express its appreciation to you who have supported our program of world peace. Your cooperation has enabled us to invite the five pictured students to Georgia Tech as our guests.

Each year outstanding students from other nations are invited to attend Georgia Tech as our guests in order to study, to observe America in action, to form friendships with us, and to represent their nations to us. The W.S.F. seeks to aid world peace by enabling foreign students who some day may be world leaders.

at the “Y” for the Tech students. The week before a dance is spent rounding up girls from Agnes Scott and several nursing schools, making posters, providing for the refreshments, and engaging in other such important duties. The members were repaid for thei refforts, however, for this year the dances were larger and more successful than ever before.

The Baptist Student Union serves as the link between Tech's fourteen hundred Baptists and the local churches, promoting not only Sunday School and Training Union but active participation in the local churches' organizations. On the campus, the BSU sponsors vespers, Bible study and discussion groups, intramural athletic teams, a monthly newspaper and various social activities. The Baptist Student Center, located at 734 Techwood Drive, N.W., is the campus headquarters for the BSU.

Every Baptist student who is a member of a local Baptist church or who is a member of a Sunday School class or Training Union in a local Baptist church is a member of the Baptist Student Union. Total membership is more than four hundred. Pictured on these pages are the BSU Executive Council members, Freshman Council members and members of the committees which make up the Greater BSU Council.

Canterbury Club is the Episcopal organization for students at Georgia Tech and Agnes Scott. Canterbury meets every Sunday at All Saints Church for worship, supper, discussion, and recreation.

One of Canterbury's biggest achievements was the licensing of ten Tech students as Lay Readers. They work with other members of the parish in leading services in the parish and in missions in the Atlanta area.

The plans for building a Student Center began functioning this school year. Students have pledged $12,500, and the parish will contribute additional money. Canterbury also had a carnival to raise money. The Student Center will probably be completed for the beginning of the 1956-57 school year.

The Tech Chapter of the Newman Club, established here in 1928, is an organization which offers the Catholic students at Tech much by way of various activities and spiritual and intellectual guidance. The chapter is regularly active with other Newman Clubs in the vicinity in social and religious functions. Members may enjoy the many dances, parties, and picnics, as well as the religious functions sponsored by the chapter. A few of the religious aspects are Lenten Lectures every Sunday evening during Lent, the annual Mother's Day Mass and Communion Breakfast, and Mass at the Newman House every first Friday of the month and on Holy Days of Obligation. One very worthwhile social function is the annual dance with proceeds donated to the March of Dimes.

Social Activities Offered by Newman Club
Religious inspiration and social fellowship are offered each Friday.

Wesley Foundation Is Methodist Churches'
The Wesley Foundation, guided by Bob Marbut, president, T. G. Daniel, vice-president, Stan Abercrombie, secretary, and Carter Terrell, treasurer, was very happy to have a special member added to their group. She is the new bride of B. C. Speers, director.

The regular meetings on Friday nights, which are planned by a student council under the guidance of B. C. and Bob Bowen, have found the house so full that it has become necessary to begin working for a new student center. These meetings consist of a short worship service followed by a program which will vary from a humorous debate to educational films on Europe and Asia.

Program for College Students
The Hillel Foundation at Tech is one of the more than two hundred active college chapters of the B’nai B’rith organization. The Hillel program is designed to provide the Jewish student, through study and discussion, with knowledge of Jewish life by acquainting him with the faith, literature, and history of his people. It hopes to help in the student’s integration into the general community by the promotion of wholesome fellowship and intergroup relations.

Hillel is designed to serve all Jewish students, regardless of background, “denominational” preferences, or degree of conviction. No particular view of Jewish life is endorsed.
One of the purposes of the campus groups is to encourage Sunday church attendance as seen here at All Saints' Episcopal Church.

The Church on Campus

The growth of the church on the Tech campus has been rapid during the last decade. With the Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Catholics, Lutherans and Jews all sponsoring active programs, practically every student can find a place to fulfill his spiritual needs. The YMCA serves as the coordinator for the various groups and in addition sponsors a weekly breakfast devotional and a religious emphasis week during the Easter season.

The latest boost to the religious life of the student was the announcement that a chapel will soon be constructed on campus.

Good clean fun is standard for the denominational groups.

The programs are largely planned and run by the student members.

Many groups such as the BSU own their own house on campus.
