Techscenes II
Epilogue
An atmosphere of confusion, extensive plans, a large and enthusiastic staff: these are the things that every editor begins the year with. By Spring Quarter, things have become more stable and organized; the realization that publications work involves long hours and little recognition has dwindled the staff to a bare minimum of hands; great ambitions and bold new plans have become overshadowed by a desperate rush to get the book out on time—or, just to get the book out.

Yearbook work differs somewhat from other publications work: Although there is more freedom in the scheduling of one's work, the feeling of satisfaction that comes with seeing the physical result of one's labor comes neither weekly nor monthly; it comes only once a year. This seemingly never-ending wait to see the final product of sleepless nights and lower grades causes many to fall by the wayside. I can only express my sincere respect for those who remained:

Special thanks are due Tommy Thomas and Bill Marchal for extra help in the final days of preparation when things looked pretty grim. Next year's editor, Bill Sumits, deserves recognition for his outstanding photography which would be a credit to any book or magazine in the country. Bernie Wenke and Bern-Art Studios did an excellent job on the class portraits. Rick Wisler continued to help out photographically even after leaving Tech. Phil Miller amazed everyone with his rapid completion of the fraternities section. Sharon Kepler did most of the classes section by herself. Kary Mullis had to leave us in midyear because of illness, but the fine work he did in the academic section provided a standard for his successors to follow. Bud Thompson struggled through the thankless job of being organizations editor. Al Price kept the books straight. Mr. Young, Mr. Hindmon, and Doris Powell of Foote and Davies deserve thanks for their help and patience. Dean Nichols, Mr. Beckum, and Bob Wallace offered advice and assistance. Ed Chancey designed the cover.

now, get all the advantages of Armco HEL-COR Pipe in new Larger Diameters

With new large diameters—24, 30, 36 inches and larger—you can now put this helically corrugated pipe to work in all normal culvert and storm sewer applications. It costs no more than ordinary riveted corrugated steel pipe. New large-size HEL-COR® has greater beam and column load strength. It also provides stronger, more watertight seams. Got a sewer or culvert job coming up? Give us a call. We'd be glad to tell you all about durable, economical large-diameter HEL-COR. Metal Products Division, Armco Steel Corporation, P. O.
