Life in the dorms is a happening that almost every member of the Georgia Tech student body experiences. For most people it is their first escape from parent's clutches, the first feeling of freedom as an individual as well as the first experience of college life. There are times of laughter, sorrow, depression and every other emotion that the human being experiences. It can probably be said to be the most irreplaceable experience of college life.

This photoessay is an effort to present the facets of dorm life — the humorous happening, the long morning hours cramming for the last exam, the drink machines that swallow money like it was going out of style, and any other of the many experiences of Tech dorm life. Although an entire annual could have been devoted to depicting the life in the dorms, a valiant effort was made to represent some of the events of the year in the following pages.
