

LINKING ARMS AROUND STUDENTS IN CRISIS: CONNECTING WITH CAMPUS SAFETY UNITS

Mary C. Aagard - Head, Access Services
Boise State University, Albertsons Library

BOISE STATE UNIVERSITY

RELATIONSHIP BUILDING

Campus Security and Police

Facilities and Maintenance

Dean of Students

Health Services

Housing

Career Services

Bursar / Registrar

Library resources -- books,
videos, information,
space

WHAT ARE WE DOING?

IT'S SAFETY WEEK

EVERYONE CURL UP AND NAP EVERY DAY

INCIDENT REPORTS

Big Brother?!

WELLNESS

Reaching students before crisis

BOISE STATE UNIVERSITY

Thank you!

Mary C. Aagard

Boise State University, Albertsons Library

maryaagard@boisestate.edu

@maryaagard

LINKING ARMS AROUND STUDENTS IN CRISIS: CONNECTING WITH CAMPUS SAFETY UNITS

We have all witnessed our fair share of panic attacks, jilted girlfriend crying fits, seizures, computer crash meltdowns, inebriation and other medical and stress induced emergencies inside the library. How do we help or to whom do we refer those students? Campus security, health services, advising and dean of students become strategic allies in helping library staff work with students. Knowing more about what those offices do and having connections with their employees creates opportunities for us to help students when they are in need. As we develop robust relationships with these partners, we also must balance that caring impulse for students with the need to protect their privacy and protect the library as a place of open intellectual expression. This session will share successful strategies for working with campus support services, and lead a discussion about strategies for connecting with other campus entities and supporting students in crisis.